(Q41-Q46):

NEW QUESTION # 41

While modeling the real-time customer profile, it is discovered that a single customer profile can have multiple address types (Home, Office, Shipping) as seen from the customer's data warehouse. Given this discovery, what is the best option to choose for modeling the customer addresses for the Real-Time Customer Profile?

- A. Model addresses as individual events using an XDM Experience Event class-based schema
- B. Model addresses as static key-value pairs in a lookup table outside of the XDM schema
- C. Model each address as its own distinct object within an XDM Individual Profile class-based schema
- D. Model addresses as an array of addresses in an XDM Individual Profile class-based schema

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 42

What actions are required for effective on-site personalization? (Select two.)

- A. Scheduling updates at regular intervals.
- B. Running batch processes for static profiles.
- C. Configuring Edge-based activation.
- D. Mapping customer behavior data in real-time.

Answer: C,D

NEW QUESTION # 43

A retail company uses Adobe RT-CDP and receives an alert about a quota breach for profile activations. What should the administrator do first?

- A. Disable all active segments to reduce profile usage.
- B. Export all profiles to an external system.
- C. Monitor license usage to identify which profiles exceed the quota.
- D. Reconfigure batch ingestion workflows to bypass profile updates.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 44

A customer has an ongoing scheduled batch dataflow (S3 source connector) that runs in every 8 hours starting 2 PM UTC. The customer requested for a schedule update to change the start time to 3 PM UTC and to run in every 6 hours. Which is the best possible solution to achieve that?

- A. Disable the existing dataflow and create a new dataflow with requested schedule (backfill enabled)
- B. From dataflow UI update the scheduler (start time & frequency) of the existing dataflow
- C. Use Flow Service API to patch update the scheduler (start time & frequency) of the existing dataflow
- D. Disable the existing dataflow and create a new dataflow with requested schedule (backfill disabled)

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Adobe Experience Platform, the Dataflow User Interface (UI) currently has limitations regarding the modification of an active dataflow's schedule once it has been established. To update the "start time" and

"frequency" of an existing batch dataflow without deleting it and losing historical context, the Flow Service API must be used.

By performing a PATCH request to the /flows endpoint, a developer can update the schedule object within the dataflow's JSON definition. This approach is superior to Options A and C because it maintains the existing dataflow ID and configuration, avoiding the "double ingestion" or "gaps" that can occur when creating new dataflows. Option B is incorrect as the current UI allows for very limited schedule edits (often only frequency, but not the base start time for certain connectors). Using the Flow Service API is the most efficient and

"clean" solution, ensuring that the S3 source connector continues to function with the updated requirements of 6-hour intervals starting at 3 PM UTC while preserving all lineage and monitoring history.

NEW QUESTION # 45

A marketer views the license usage dashboard first thing in the morning and notices the average profile richness metric is hovering around 300KB per profile when they only have 100KB in their contract. The marketer appropriately identifies a dataset causing the issue and determines they can drop the entire dataset without impacting their marketing use cases. They know the dataset contributes around ~150KB of average profile richness per profile. When the marketer reviews the dashboard license usage dashboard before the end of the day, they notice it has not been updated with the 150KB of richness removed. They confirm the data is deleted from the profile and are confused.

Assuming no other factors are present that are contributing to the average profile richness, why is the dashboard still showing the old value of 300KB?

- A. The marketer forgot the license usage dashboard only updates one time per day.
- B. The marketer needs to manually run the "Update license usage" job to refresh the metrics.
- C. The marketer needs to re-enable the deleted dataset for the dashboard to reflect the changes.
- D. The marketer needs to wait until the next streaming segmentation job runs.

Answer: A
