NEW QUESTION # 433

Nelson is a Dealing Representative with True Wealth Advisors Inc., a mutual fund dealer. Nelson follows proper procedures related to his firm's Relationship Disclosure Information (RDI). Which of the following CORRECTLY describes how Nelson is permitted to evidence that he satisfied his RDI obligation?

- A. Nelson may retain a copy of the RDI in the client file with detailed notes to confirm that he provided and explained the RDI to the client.
- B. Nelson can formalize his relationship under the RDI using a Letter of Engagement that specifies duties, responsibilities, and level of service.
- C. Nelson can record detailed notes which confirm that he provided and explained the Fund Facts to the client within 2 days of the RDI.
- D. Nelson may deliver the RDI to clients who request it and keep detailed notes of the clients who were provided with the RDI.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Relationship Disclosure Information (RDI) is a document that provides important information about the nature and scope of the relationship between a registered firm and its clients. It covers topics such as the products and services offered by the firm, the fees and charges applicable to the client's account, the risks associated with investing, the conflict of interest management policies of the firm, and the dispute resolution services available to the client. According to Section 14.2 of National Instrument 31-103 Registration Requirements, Exemptions and Ongoing Registrant Obligations (NI 31-103), registered firms must provide RDI to their clients before they purchase or sell securities for them or advise them to do so. Registered firms must also update RDI in a timely manner if there are any significant changes to it. To evidence that they have satisfied their RDI obligation, registered firms may retain a copy of the RDI in the client file with detailed notes to confirm that they have provided and explained RDI to their clients. This is one of the acceptable methods suggested by Alberta Securities Commission (ASC) in its presentation on RDI1. Delivering RDI only upon request or using a letter of engagement are not sufficient methods to comply with NI 31-103.

Providing and explaining Fund Facts is a separate obligation under NI 31-101 Mutual Fund Distribution Rules. References: Relationship Disclosure Information August 2021, Relationship Disclosure Information, Relationship Disclosure Information

NEW QUESTION # 435

What is Widget Inc.'s gross profit?

Widget Inc. Earnings Statement

Sales: $200,000

Cost of Goods Sold: $80,000

Selling & General Expenses: $40,000

Depreciation: $5,000

Total Expenses: $30,000

Net Earnings: $40,000

- A. $75,000
- B. $120,000
- C. $50,000
- D. $45,000

Answer: B

Explanation:

Gross profit is calculated as sales minus the cost of goods sold. For Widget Inc.: $$200,000 - $80,000 = $120,000$. The feedback from the document states:

"Sales are reduced by the expenses that were incurred in order to generate the goods sold (cost of goods sold).

These expenses include the cost of inventories used to produce the goods as well as the labour that went into their production. The sales revenue, net of the cost of producing those goods, is known as gross profit. In this case, $\text{gross profit} = $200,000 - $80,000 = $120,000$."
