Cisco Certified Design Expert (CCDE) Written Exam Sample Questions (Q16-Q21):

NEW QUESTION # 16

Which two mechanisms avoid suboptimal routing in a network with dynamic mutual redistribution between multiple OSPFv2 and EIGRP boundaries? (Choose two.)

- A. route tagging
- B. route tagging
- C. matching OSPF external routes
- D. AD manipulation
- E. matching EIGRP process ID
- F. route filtering

Answer: A,B

NEW QUESTION # 17

VPLS is implemented in a Layer 2 network with 2000 VLANs. What is the primary concern to ensure successful deployment of VPLS?

- A. VLAN scalability
- B. The underlying transport mechanism
- C. Flooding is necessary to propagate MAC address reachability information
- D. PE scalability

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 18

Which design benefit of bridge assurance is true?

- A. It prevents switch loops caused by unidirectional point-to-point link condition on Rapid PVST+ and MST
- B. It supposes a spanning-tree topology change upon connecting and disconnecting a station on a port
- C. It allows small, unmanaged switches to be plugged into ports of access switches without the risk of switch loops.
- D. It prevents switched traffic from traversing suboptimal paths on the network.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Bridge Assurance is a mechanism used with Rapid PVST+ and MST that helps prevent loops caused by unidirectional failures on point-to-point links. When enabled, both ends of a point-to-point STP link must continuously exchange BPDUs. If one side stops receiving BPDUs, the port transitions into a blocking state, preventing loops caused by silent failures.

* This directly addresses unidirectional link failures that otherwise may not be detected quickly by traditional STP timers.

* It is typically deployed between switches in the core and distribution layers, where point-to-point links exist.

Other options explained:

* A: Incorrect - STP TCNs are not triggered simply by station connection events.

* B: Incorrect - Path optimization is handled by STP/RSTP convergence, not bridge assurance directly.

* C: Incorrect - Bridge assurance is not designed for unmanaged switches at the access layer.

NEW QUESTION # 19

Company XYZ is designing the IS-IS deployment strategy for their multiarea IS-IS domain. They want IS-IS neighbour relationships to be minimized on each network segment and want to optimize the size of the IS-IS LSDB on each router. Which can design can be used to meet these requirements?

- A. Design the network so that the routers connecting to other areas are Level 1/Level 2 routers and internal routers are Level 1
- B. Design the network so that the routers connecting to other areas are Level 2 routers and internal routers are Level 1
- C. Design the network so that all routers are Level 1 routers
- D. Design all routers as Level 2 routers. Set the links between the routers as Level 1 with the area

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 20

Setting a specific goal for throughput based on per-second data rates between end hosts does not identify the requirements for specific applications. When specifying throughput goals for applications, it is important to understand the throughput requirements for each application. Which two factors that can constrain application layer throughput? (Choose two.)

- A. workstation and server availability
- B. protocol parameters, such as frame size and retransmission timers
- C. end-to-end throughput rates

- D. sent packets or cells at networking devices
- E. the pps or cps rate of networking devices

Answer: B,C
