1.4.2 Portfolio Management

A portfolio refers to projects, programs, subportfolios, and operations managed as a group to achieve strategic objectives. The projects or programs of the portfolio may not necessarily be interdependent or directly related. For example, an infrastructure firm that has the strategic objective of "maximizing the return on its investments" may put together a portfolio that includes a mix of projects in oil and gas, power, water, roads, rail, and airports. From this mix, the firm may choose to manage related projects as one program. All of the power projects may be grouped together as a power program. Similarly, all of the water projects may be grouped together as a water program.

Thus, the power program and the water program become integral components of the enterprise portfolio of the infrastructure firm.

NEW QUESTION # 231

Specification of both the deliverables and the processes is the focus of:

- A. Configuration control
- B. Project monitoring and control
- C. Change control
- D. Issue control

Answer: A

Explanation:

Section: Volume B

Explanation:

Configuration control is focused on the specification of both the deliverables and the processes; while change control is focused on identifying, documenting, and approving or rejecting changes to the project documents, deliverables, or baselines.

Some of the configuration management activities included in the Perform Integrated Change Control process are as follows:

Configuration identification. Identification and selection of a configuration item to provide the basis for
