- A. Political
- B. Environmental
- C. Operational
- D. Reputational

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

Failure to respect human rights and labour laws in the supply chain introduces:

* Operational Risk: Disruptions due to strikes, legal actions, or supplier instability.

NEW QUESTION # 169

The media reports on and raises awareness of... select all that apply.

- A. Environmental disasters caused by organizations
- B. Organizations that fall short of the policies they say they adopt, e.g., ethical working conditions throughout their supply chain, reducing impact on environment, etc.
- C. New legislation
- D. Activities of environmental pressure groups

Answer: A,B,C,D

Explanation:

The media plays a multifaceted role in shaping public perception of environmental issues, directly impacting procurement and supply chain practices:

* Environmental Disasters: Coverage of events like oil spills or factory emissions (e.g., BP Deepwater Horizon) highlights organizational failures, pushing firms to improve environmental safeguards.

* Pressure Groups: Reports on groups like Greenpeace or Extinction Rebellion amplify their advocacy, influencing corporate behavior and policy.

* New Legislation: Announcements of laws (e.g., EU carbon taxes) inform stakeholders, prompting compliance in supply chains.

* Policy Shortfalls: Exposés of "greenwashing"-where firms overstate environmental efforts (e.g., unethical sourcing despite claims)-hold organizations accountable.

The CIPS L3M6 module emphasizes the media's role as a watchdog and educator, driving awareness and action on environmental sustainability. All options are correct, reflecting the comprehensive scope of media influence under LO2.

NEW QUESTION # 171

Visual pollution is the extreme loss of aesthetic attraction which can impair a person's ability to enjoy their view.

- A. FALSE
- B. TRUE

Answer: B

Explanation:

Visual pollution refers to the degradation of aesthetic appeal due to unsightly elements (e.g., billboards, landfills), impairing enjoyment of surroundings. The CIPS L3M6 module defines it as an environmental concern linked to supply chains-e.g., poorly sited warehouses or cluttered transport hubs. It affects quality of life by obstructing natural beauty or creating visual clutter, a subtle but real impact addressed in LO2. For instance, a sprawling industrial park blocking a scenic view exemplifies this, making the statement true and relevant to sustainable site planning.
