EC-COUNCIL EC Council Certified Incident Handler (ECIH v3) Sample Questions (Q238-Q243):

NEW QUESTION # 238

A multinational SaaS provider detects a major security breach involving unauthorized access to customer billing data in its EU and APAC servers. After triage and legal review, the IH&R team confirms data exfiltration impacting regulated regions. In response, the CISO, with legal and compliance teams, initiates a structured communication protocol-informing affected clients, notifying data protection authorities under laws such as GDPR, and preparing media responses with public affairs. All communications are securely routed, reviewed for legal accuracy, and sent only with executive approval to mitigate risk and misinformation. What type of communication is emphasized in this scenario?

- A. Containment communications shared during malware removal

- B. Automated alert forwarding using SIEM-generated rules
- C. Technical internal update focused on root cause analysis
- D. External communication intended for non-organizational entities

Answer: D

Explanation:

The EC-Council Incident Handler (ECIH) curriculum outlines structured communication protocols as a critical part of incident management, particularly when regulated data and external stakeholders are involved.

When data breaches affect customers and fall under regulatory frameworks such as GDPR, organizations are legally required to notify affected individuals and data protection authorities within defined timelines.

The scenario describes communication with clients, regulatory authorities, and media representatives. These stakeholders are external to the organization. ECIH categorizes this as external communication, which must be carefully coordinated with legal, compliance, and executive leadership to ensure accuracy and regulatory compliance.

ECIH emphasizes that external communication must be controlled, legally reviewed, approved by executive leadership, and aligned with regulatory requirements to prevent misinformation and reduce reputational damage. This differs from internal updates or automated alerts.

Option A refers to automated technical notifications. Option C focuses on internal analysis discussions.

Option D relates to operational containment communications during malware handling.

Therefore, the scenario emphasizes structured external communication intended for non-organizational entities.

NEW QUESTION # 239

In the cloud environment, an authorized security professional executes approved sanitation procedures using approved utilities to permanently remove data spilled from contaminated information systems and applications in the cloud.

This is an example of which of the following?

- A. Cloud auditor
- B. Cloud broker
- C. Cloud eradication
- D. Cloud computing

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 240

Michael is an incident handler at CyberTech Solutions. He is performing detection and analysis of a cloud security incident. He is analyzing the file systems, slack spaces, and metadata of the storage units to find hidden malware and evidence of malice.

Identify the cloud security incident handled by Michael.

- A. Server-related incident
- B. Application-related incident
- C. Network-related incident
- D. Storage-related incident

Answer: D

Explanation:

Michael's activities, which involve analyzing file systems, slack spaces, and metadata of storage units to find hidden malware and evidence of malice, indicate that he is handling a storage-related cloud security incident.

This type of incident pertains to unauthorized access, alteration, or exfiltration of data stored in cloud environments. By focusing on the storage aspects such as file systems and metadata, Michael is looking for signs of compromise that specifically affect the storage of data, which is indicative of a storage-related security incident in the cloud.

References: Incident Handler (ECIH v3) certification materials cover the various types of cloud security incidents, detailing how to detect and respond to them, including those related to storage where sensitive data might be targeted or compromised.
