IBFCSM Certified Emergency and Disaster Professional Sample Questions (Q38-Q43):

NEW QUESTION # 38

What did EMS personnel learn during initial involvement with injured Joplin tornado victims?

- A. Triage and medical treatment became more effective than victim transport
- B. Adaptation to a variety of issues helped promote fluidity of the situation
- C. A well-designed ICS contributed to less confusion at the disaster location

Answer: B

Explanation:

The response to the May 2011 Joplin, Missouri tornado serves as a foundational case study in the IBFCSM CEDP curriculum regarding the necessity of tactical flexibility. According to the NIST and FEMA After-Action Reports, the primary lesson learned by EMS and first responders was that adaptation to a variety of issues helped promote fluidity of the situation. The sheer scale of the EF-5 tornado caused a near-total collapse of standard communications, destroyed the city's main hospital (St. John's Regional Medical Center), and blocked primary transport routes with massive amounts of debris.

In this chaotic environment, rigid adherence to pre-planned protocols became impossible. EMS personnel had to adapt by utilizing unconventional transport vehicles (such as pickup trucks and flatbed trailers) when ambulances could not navigate the debris-strewn streets. They established "ad hoc" casualty collection points in parking lots and hardware stores because the designated facilities were gone. This "fluidity" was not a result of a lack of planning, but rather a high level of Operational Resilience where responders understood the intent of the mission (life safety) and adapted their methods to overcome physical barriers.

While a well-designed ICS (Option A) is always a goal, the Joplin reports indicated that the initial hours were characterized by significant "command fog" due to the loss of the primary EOC and radio towers. It was the "bottom-up" adaptation of field personnel that stabilized the incident. Option B is incorrect because, in Joplin, rapid transport to secondary facilities in nearby towns became the life-saving priority once the primary hospital was incapacitated. The Joplin event proved that in catastrophic "Black Swan" events, the ability of personnel to innovate, communicate through face-to-face relays, and utilize available local resources is what ensures the success of the response when the "ideal" system fails.

NEW QUESTION # 39

What would help most to measure readiness across the entire homeland security spectrum?

- A. National Coalition Exercise
- B. National Exercise Program
- C. National Capstone Exercise

Answer: B

Explanation:

The National Exercise Program (NEP) is the primary mechanism used to measure and improve the nation's readiness across the entire homeland security spectrum. Managed by FEMA, the NEP provides a consistent, multi-year schedule of exercises that test the Core Capabilities described in the National Preparedness Goal.

The NEP is designed to be "all-hazards" and includes participation from federal, state, local, tribal, and territorial governments, as well as the private sector and non-profit organizations.

While the National Capstone Exercise (Option C) is a high-profile, biennial event within the NEP that specifically tests the nation's ability to respond to a catastrophic scenario (often involving the President and Cabinet), it is the National Exercise Program (Option B) as a whole that provides the continuous, systematic measurement of readiness. The NEP ensures that exercises are not just "one-off" events but are part of a larger "Progressive Exercise Program" that builds from small seminars to massive full-scale simulations.

According to the HSEEP (Homeland Security Exercise and Evaluation Program) methodology used by the NEP, the "measure" of readiness is found in the After-Action Report (AAR) and the Improvement Plan (IP). By identifying gaps in capabilities during these national-level exercises, the government can adjust its grant funding, training priorities, and policy developments to address the most critical vulnerabilities. For a CEDP professional, the NEP represents the "final exam" for preparedness. It provides the empirical data needed to prove that the nation's "Integrated Response" actually works, moving beyond theoretical plans to demonstrated operational reality across all 32 Core Capabilities.

NEW QUESTION # 40

What term describes a type of human hazard that would be excluded from classification listings of chemical agents that could be used as a terrorist weapon?

- A. Liver agents
- B. Blood agents
- C. Blister agents

Answer: A

Explanation:

In the classification of chemical warfare agents (CWA) and toxic industrial chemicals (TICs) used in terrorism and disaster planning, the term Liver agents is not a recognized category. Traditional chemical threats are classified based on their physiological effects on the human body into four primary categories: Nerve agents, Blister agents (Vesicants), Blood agents (Cyanides), and Choking agents (Pulmonary agents).

Blood agents (Option A), such as Hydrogen Cyanide, interfere with the body's ability to use oxygen at the cellular level. Blister agents (Option B), such as Sulfur Mustard or Lewisite, cause severe chemical burns on the skin and respiratory tract. While some chemicals may eventually cause organ damage (including hepatotoxicity or liver damage) as a secondary effect or through long-term chronic exposure, "Liver agent" is not a tactical classification used by the CDC, OSHA, or the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) to describe acute terrorist weaponry.

For the Certified Emergency and Disaster Professional (CEDP), recognizing these classifications is vital for identifying the correct medical countermeasures and Personal Protective Equipment (PPE). For example, Nerve agents require the rapid administration of atropine and 2-PAM chloride, whereas Blood agents require cyanide antidotes. By focusing on the recognized classifications—Nerve, Blister, Blood, and Choking—emergency managers can streamline their detection protocols and triage processes. Excluding non-standard terms like "Liver agents" ensures that responders stay focused on the acute, life-threatening symptoms associated with the most likely chemical terrorist threats.

NEW QUESTION # 41

What agency operates the National Response Center (NRC)?

- A. Army Corps of Engineers
- B. Coast Guard
- C. Environmental Protection Agency

Answer: B

Explanation:

The National Response Center (NRC) is the sole federal point of contact for reporting all oil, chemical, radiological, biological, and etiological discharges into the environment within the United States.<sup>4</sup> While it is a critical component of the National Response System and is used by the EPA (Option A), it is physically operated and staffed 24 hours a day by the United States Coast Guard (USCG).<sup>5</sup> Headquartered in Washington, D.C., the NRC serves as the "nerve center" for federal pollution incident reporting.<sup>6</sup> When a spill or release occurs that meets federal reporting requirements (such as a "Reportable Quantity" under CERCLA or the Clean Water Act), the responsible party must contact the NRC.<sup>7</sup> The Coast Guard watchstanders then immediately notify the pre-designated federal On-Scene Coordinator (OSC)—either from the EPA for inland incidents or the Coast Guard for coastal/maritime incidents. They also distribute the information to other relevant state and federal agencies through the Incident Reporting Information System (IRIS).

For a CEDP professional, knowing the role of the NRC is essential for regulatory compliance and rapid response. Reports to the NRC activate the National Contingency Plan (NCP), allowing federal assets to be mobilized if the local or state response is insufficient.<sup>8</sup> Since 2003, the NRC's role has expanded to include receiving reports of suspicious activity and security breaches in the maritime domain.<sup>9</sup> This centralized reporting system ensures that there is no "lost time" when a toxic release occurs, as the Coast Guard's 24/7 capability ensures that the entire federal response apparatus can be alerted within minutes of a phone call.<sup>10</sup>

What concept addresses assignment of personnel under a single supervisor?

- A. Unity of command
- B. Controlling
- C. Span of control

Answer: A

Explanation:

The concept that mandates every individual is assigned to only one single supervisor is known as Unity of Command. This is a fundamental principle of the Incident Command System (ICS) and the National Incident Management System (NIMS). The purpose of Unity of Command is to eliminate confusion caused by conflicting instructions and to ensure a clear, vertical chain of command. Under Unity of Command, a responder should never receive orders from multiple bosses. If a firefighter is assigned to "Division A," their only supervisor is the "Division A Supervisor." Even if a high-ranking Chief from another district walks by and gives an order, the responder must report back to their single assigned supervisor. This prevents the "freelancing" that often leads to injuries and deaths during high-stress disaster operations.

It is frequently confused with Span of Control (Option B). Span of Control refers to the number of subordinates a supervisor can effectively manage (typically a ratio of 1:5). While Span of Control deals with the "how many," Unity of Command deals with the "who reports to whom." Controlling (Option C) is a general management function but not a specific NIMS technical term for reporting relationships.

For a CEDP professional, enforcing Unity of Command is essential for accountability. In large-scale disasters where hundreds of agencies converge, the lack of Unity of Command is the most common cause of organizational failure. By ensuring everyone has exactly one supervisor, the Incident Commander can track the location and safety of every soul on the "fireground" or disaster site through a single, consolidated reporting structure.
