R502.6 Bearing.
The ends of each joist, beam or girder shall have not less than $1^1/_2$ inches (38 mm) of bearing on wood or metal and not less than 3 inches (76 mm) on masonry or concrete except where supported on a 1-inch by 4-inch (25 mm by 102 mm) ribbon strip and nailed to the adjacent stud or by the use of approved joist hangers. The bearing on masonry or concrete shall be direct, or a sill plate of 2-inch-minimum (51 mm) nominal thickness shall be provided under the joist, beam or girder. The sill plate shall provide a minimum nominal bearing area of 48 square inches (30 865 square mm).

❖ This section establishes minimum lengths of bearing for several alternative support systems to provide for the transfer of floor loads to supporting elements. These minimum requirements are based on anticipated loads and the allowable compressive stresses perpendicular to the grain for beam sizes and grades typical for wood-frame construction in addition to consideration of shear failure of the masonry. For joists, beams or girders bearing on wood or metal, the minimum bearing shown in Commentary Figure R502.6(1) must be provided.

As an alternative, the members may be supported by a 1-inch by 4-inch (25 mm by 102 mm) ribbon strip when joists are nailed to adjacent studs as shown in Commentary Figure R502.6(3) or by the use of approved joist hangers as shown in Commentary Figure R502.6(4).
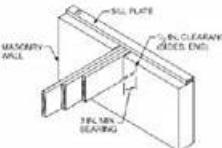

When joists, beams or girders bear on masonry, a minimum bearing of 3 inches (76 mm) is required, as shown in Commentary Figure R502.6(2).

Where joists, beams or girders span across masonry or concrete piers, full bearing of not less than 3 inches (76 mm) directly on the masonry or concrete pier is required. The code permits a sill plate of 2-inch (51 mm) minimum nominal thickness in lieu of bearing directly on the masonry or concrete. This will allow for the condition where the elevation of the top of the pier is below the elevation of the bottom of the joist, beam or girder and the joist, beam or girder is not bearing directly on the masonry or concrete. The minimum nominal bearing area of 48 square inches (0.03 m²) is required to provide a bearing area on top of hollow masonry walls or piers.

For SI: 1 inch = 25.4 mm.
