CertNexus CyberSec First Responder Sample Questions (Q55-Q60):

NEW QUESTION # 55

An unauthorized network scan may be detected by parsing network sniffer data for:

- A. IP traffic from multiple IP addresses to other networks.
- B. IP traffic from a single IP address to a single IP address.
- C. IP traffic from a single IP address to multiple IP addresses.
- D. IP traffic from multiple IP addresses to a single IP address.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 56

A security analyst needs to capture network traffic from a compromised Mac host. They attempt to execute the tcpdump command using their general user account but continually receive an "Operation Not Permitted" error.

Use of which of the following commands will allow the analyst to capture traffic using tcpdump successfully?

- A. lsof
- B. chmod
- C. chroot
- D. netstat
- E. sudo

Answer: E

Explanation:

To capture network traffic using tcpdump on a Unix-like system, administrative privileges are typically required. The sudo command allows a user to execute commands with superuser (root) privileges, which would bypass the permission restrictions encountered with the general user account. Without sudo, the analyst would not have the necessary permissions to run tcpdump.

NEW QUESTION # 57

A system administrator pulls records from a database that only requires the use of their general user vs. domain admin account. Use of the general user account demonstrates which of the following concepts?

- A. Separation of Duties
- B. Privileged Access Management
- C. Least Privilege
- D. Discretionary Access Control

Answer: C

Explanation:

The principle of Least Privilege ensures that users are granted the minimum level of access required to perform their tasks. In this case, using the general user account instead of a domain admin account demonstrates least privilege, as the administrator is only granted the necessary permissions to access the required records, rather than full administrative rights.

NEW QUESTION # 58

As part of an organization's regular maintenance activities, a security engineer visits the Internet Storm Center advisory page to obtain the latest list of blacklisted host/network addresses. The security engineer does this to perform which of the following activities?
