BCS PC-BA-FBA-20 (BCS Foundation Certificate in Business Analysis V4.0) Exam is a valuable certification for anyone interested in pursuing a career in business analysis. It provides a solid foundation in the principles and techniques of business analysis, and can help candidates stand out in a competitive job market.

BCS Foundation Certificate in Business Analysis V4.0 Sample Questions (Q71-Q76):

NEW QUESTION # 71

In a particular organisation it is common practice to call all managers by their first name. It is part of the culture of the organisation. Newcomers are quickly corrected if they do not follow this informal approach.

What would knowing about this convention be classified as in Requirements Engineering?

- A. Explicit individual knowledge
- B. Tacit individual knowledge.
- C. Tacit corporate knowledge.
- D. Explicit corporate knowledge.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 72

Which of the following is a principle of business analysis?

- A. Symptoms not root causes.
- B. IT system change not business improvement
- C. Solutions not options.
- D. Negotiation not avoidance.

Answer: D

Explanation:

One of the core principles of business analysis is the continuous need for negotiation and consensus building, particularly when dealing with conflicting stakeholder perspectives and requirements. Business analysis actively seeks to negotiate and resolve these conflicts rather than avoiding them, which is a key part of establishing a shared understanding of the problem and the proposed solution. The other options contradict established BA principles: the principle is to find root causes, not symptoms (leading to superficial and ineffective solutions); to investigate and evaluate multiple options, not just solutions (ensuring the optimal change is selected); and to focus on business improvement as the driver for any necessary IT system change, not the other way around. The BA role necessitates working across competing interests to reach a successful outcome, making negotiation a fundamental principle. NEW QUESTION # 73

A project reporting system stores information about Employees.

How would an Employee be represented in an entity-relationship diagram?

- A. As a Relationship.
- B. As an Attribute
- C. As an Actor.
- D. As an Entity

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 74

How would usability and performance requirements be classified?

- A. As technical requirements.
- B. As non-functional requirements.
- C. As general requirements
- D. As functional requirements

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 75

In which section of a requirements document would technical requirements be recorded?

- A. Glossary of terms
- B. Data model
- C. Function models
- D. Requirements catalogue

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Requirements Catalogue (or the Requirements Specification section) is the comprehensive, organised list of all types of requirements. Technical Requirements are the non-functional constraints placed on the solution's design or build (e.g., specific hardware, operating system compatibility, integration protocols). While these inform other models, they are typically documented and tracked with other requirements (Functional and Non-functional) in the master Requirements Catalogue, often within the Non-functional or System Requirements section of the catalogue structure. Options A, B, and C are supporting documents or models, not the primary repository for a list of technical requirements.
