NEW QUESTION # 248

An implementation engineer is integrating NetWorker with a PowerProtect DD appliance running DDOS 5.7 and wants to use Optimized Performance Mode for a VMware group. The configuration fails.

What is a reason for the failure?

- A. The daemon.raw file on the NetWorker server must be updated with the FQDN of the PowerProtect DD appliance.
- B. DD OS 5.7 requires the shared library to use Optimized Performance Mode.
- C. An updated DDOS version is required to use Optimized Performance Mode.
- D. The NMC service and NetWorker server service must be installed on separate hosts.

Answer: C

Explanation:
The "Optimized for Performance" backup optimization mode is only supported on Data Domain systems running DDOS 6.0.0.30 (or later) - and if you're on the 5.7 release train, you must be at least at DDOS 5.7.1.
Attempting to enable Performance mode on a DD appliance at plain DDOS 5.7.0 will cause the configuration to fail (or fall back to Capacity mode) with a warning in the logs.
