NEW QUESTION # 43

You are the decisioning architect on an AI-powered one-to-one customer engagement implementation project.

You are asked to design the next-best-action prioritization expression that balances the customer needs with the business objectives. What factor do you consider in the prioritization expression?

- A. Offer relevancy
- B. Customer contact policy
- C. Offer eligibility
- D. Predicted customer behavior

Answer: D

Explanation:

The prioritization expression is a formula that calculates the priority score of each offer for each customer, based on various factors that reflect the customer needs and the business objectives. One of the most important factors is the predicted customer behavior, which is measured by the propensity. The propensity is a value that indicates how likely a customer is to accept an offer, based on their attributes and behaviors. The propensity is calculated by using predictive analytics models that learn from historical data and feedback. The higher the propensity, the higher the priority score, making the offer more relevant and valuable for the customer.
