EC-COUNCIL EC-Council Certified Network Defender CND Sample Questions (Q156-Q161):

NEW QUESTION # 156
Which command list all ports available on a server?

- A. sudo netstat -tunIp
- B. sudo ntstat -Is tunIp
- C. sudo apt nst -tunIp
- D. sudo apt netstate -Is tunIp

Answer: A

Explanation:
The netstat command is used to display network connections, routing tables, interface statistics, masquerade connections, and multicast memberships. To list all ports available on a server, including both TCP and UDP, along with the listening state and associated program names, the - tunlp options are used:
-t shows TCP ports.
-u shows UDP ports.
-n displays addresses and port numbers in numerical form.
-p shows the PID and name of the program to which each socket belongs. Therefore, the command sudo netstat -tunlp effectively lists all ports available on a server with detailed information.

NEW QUESTION # 157
Peter, a malicious hacker, obtains e-mail addresses by harvesting them from postings, blogs, DNS listings, and Web pages. He then sends a large number of unsolicited commercial e-mail (UCE) messages to these addresses. Which of the following e-mail crimes is Peter committing?

- A. E-mail spoofing
- B. E-mail storm
- C. E-mail bombing
- D. E-mail spam

Answer: D

Explanation:
Peter is performing spamming activity. Spam is a term that refers to the unsolicited e-mails sent to a large number of e-mail users. The number of such e-mails is increasing day by day, as most companies now prefer to use e-mails for promoting their products. Because of these unsolicited e-mails, legitimate e-mails take a much longer time to deliver to their destination. The attachments sent through spam may also contain viruses.
However, spam can be stopped by implementing spam filters on servers and e-mail clients.
Answer option C is incorrect. Mail bombing is an attack that is used to overwhelm mail servers and clients by sending a large number of unwanted e-mails. The aim of this type of attack is to completely fill the recipient's hard disk with immense, useless files, causing at best irritation, and at worst total computer failure. E-mail filtering and properly configuring email relay functionality on mail servers can be helpful for protection against this type of attack.
Answer option B is incorrect. An e-mail storm is a sudden spike of Reply All messages on an e-mail distribution list, usually caused by a controversial or misdirected message. Such storms start when multiple members of the distribution list reply to the entire list at the same time in response to an instigating message. Other members soon respond, usually adding vitriol to the discussion, asking to be removed from the list, or pleading for the cessation of messages. If enough members reply to these unwanted messages, this triggers a chain reaction of e-mail messages. The sheer load of traffic generated by these storms can render the e-mail servers carrying them inoperative, similar to a DDoS attack.
Some e-mail viruses also have the capacity to create e-mail storms, by sending copies of themselves to an infected user's contacts, including distribution lists, infecting the contacts in turn.
Answer option D is incorrect. E-mail spoofing is a term used to describe e-mail activity in which the sender address and other parts of the e-mail header are altered to appear as though the e-mail originated from a different source. E-mail spoofing is a technique commonly used for spam e-mail and phishing to hide the origin of an e-mail message. By changing certain properties of the e-mail, such as the From, Return-Path, and Reply- To fields (which can be found in the message header), ill-intentioned users can make the e-mail appear to be from someone other than the actual sender. The result is that, although the e-mail appears to come from the address indicated in the From field, it actually comes from another source.

NEW QUESTION # 158
Which of the following classes of IP addresses provides a maximum of only 254 host addresses per network ID?

- A. Class C

- B. Class B
- C. Class D
- D. Class A

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 159

What represents the ability of an organization to respond under emergency in order to minimize the damage to its brand name, business operation, and profit?

- A. Incident management
- B. Emergency management
- C. Disaster recovery
- D. Crisis management

Answer: D

Explanation:
Crisis management represents the ability of an organization to respond effectively during emergencies to minimize damage to its brand name, business operations, and profits. It involves identifying a threat to an organization and responding to it in a timely manner. Crisis management plans and processes can help an organization deal with unexpected events, ensuring that they are prepared to deal with potential disruptions. This strategic management process is designed to protect an organization from various risks and to prevent these risks from becoming bigger issues.
