OCPE Pesticide Applicator Category 7A General and Household Pest Control Exam Sample Questions (Q77-Q82):

NEW QUESTION # 77

The most common cockroach found in buildings is the ____ cockroach.

- A. American
- B. German
- C. Brown-banded

Answer: B

Explanation:

The German cockroach (Blattella germanica) is the most common cockroach found in buildings, particularly in kitchens and bathrooms, due to its preference for warm, humid environments and rapid reproduction. The General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 7: Cockroaches) identifies the German cockroach as the most prevalent indoor species in the U.S., including New Jersey. Option A (American cockroach) is larger and more common in sewers or basements. Option B (Brown-banded cockroach) is less common and prefers drier areas.

NEW QUESTION # 78

____ flies are easily recognized by their metallic green or blue color.

- A. House
- B. Cluster
- C. Bottle or blow

Answer: C

Explanation:

Bottle or blow flies are known for their metallic green or blue color, which distinguishes them from other flies. The General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 7: Flies) describes these flies as common in structures, often attracted to decaying organic matter.

Option A (cluster flies) are dull grayish-brown and often found in attics. Option B (house flies) are gray with black stripes, not metallic.

NEW QUESTION # 79

Which rodent requires a daily water source?

- A. House mouse
- B. Norway rat
- C. Deer mouse

Answer: B

Explanation:

Norway rats require a daily water source to survive, often living near water or in areas with high moisture. The General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 8: Rodents) notes this as a key characteristic, making water sources a target for control. Option B (house mouse) and Option C (deer mouse) can survive on moisture from food and do not require a daily water source.

NEW QUESTION # 80

Cockroaches develop through:

- A. Complete metamorphosis (egg, larva, pupa, adult)
- B. Gradual metamorphosis (egg, nymph, adult)
- C. Total metamorphosis (egg, adult)

Answer: B

Explanation:

Cockroaches undergo gradual metamorphosis, which includes three stages: egg, nymph, and adult.

Nymphs hatch from eggs and resemble smaller, wingless adults, molting several times before reaching maturity. The General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 7: Cockroaches) confirms this life cycle for common species like the German cockroach. Option B (complete metamorphosis) applies to insects like flies or beetles. Option C (total metamorphosis) is not a recognized term and is incorrect.

NEW QUESTION # 81

The two modes of action for the pesticide product TEMPRID are:

- A. Mist or foam
- B. Combined neurotoxin only
- C. Contact and systemic

Answer: C

Explanation:

TEMPRID SC contains two active ingredients: imidacloprid and beta-cyfluthrin. Imidacloprid acts as a systemic insecticide, being absorbed by the pest and affecting its nervous system over time, while beta-cyfluthrin acts as a contact insecticide, killing pests on direct exposure by disrupting nerve function.

The TEMPRID SC label and the General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 6: Pesticide Types) describe these dual modes of action, which make TEMPRID effective against a wide range of pests. Option B (combined neurotoxin only) is partially correct but does not specify the contact and systemic nature. Option C (mist or foam) refers to application methods, not modes of action.
