Amazon AWS Certified Developer Associate Exam (DVA-C02) Sample Questions (Q235-Q240):

NEW QUESTION # 235

A developer is creating an AWS Lambda function that searches for items from an Amazon DynamoDB table that contains customer contact information. The DynamoDB table items have the customer's email_address as the partition key and additional properties such as customer_type, name, and job_title.

The Lambda function runs whenever a user types a new character into the customer_type text input. The developer wants the search to return partial matches of all the email_address property of a particular customer_type. The developer does not want to recreate the DynamoDB table.

What should the developer do to meet these requirements?

- A. Add a global secondary index (GSI) to the DynamoDB table with customer_type as the partition key and email_address as the sort key. Perform a query operation on the GSI by using the begins_with key condition expression with the email_address property.
- B. Add a local secondary index (LSI) to the DynamoDB table with customer_type as the partition key and email_address as the sort key. Perform a query operation on the LSI by using the begins_with key condition expression with the email_address property.
- C. Add a global secondary index (GSI) to the DynamoDB table with email_address as the partition key and customer_type as the sort key. Perform a query operation on the GSI by using the begins_with key condition expression with the email_address property.
- D. Add a local secondary index (LSI) to the DynamoDB table with job_title as the partition key and email_address as the sort key. Perform a query operation on the LSI by using the begins_with key condition expression with the email_address property.

Answer: A

Explanation:

* Understand the Problem: The existing DynamoDB table has email_address as the partition key.

Searching by customer_type requires a different data access pattern. We need an efficient way to query for partial matches on email_address based on customer_type.

* Why Global Secondary Index (GSI):

* GSIs allow you to define a different partition key and sort key from the main table, enabling new query patterns.

* In this case, having customer_type as the GSI's partition key lets you group all emails with the same customer type together.

* Using email_address as the sort key allows ordering within each customer type, facilitating the partial matching.

* Querying the GSI:

* You'll perform a query operation on the GSI, not the original table.

* Use the begins_ with key condition expression on the GSI's sort key (email_address) to find partial matches as the user types in the customer_type field.

NEW QUESTION # 236

A company is using Amazon RDS MySQL instances for its application database tier and Apache Tomcat servers for its web tier. Most of the database queries from web applications are repeated read requests.

Use of which AWS service would increase in performance by adding in-memory store for repeated read queries?

- A. Amazon RDS Multi-AZ
- B. Amazon SQS
- C. Amazon RDS read replica
- D. Amazon ElastiCache

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 237

An Amazon S3 bucket, "myawsbucket" is configured with website hosting in Tokyo region, what is the region-specific website endpoint?

- A. myawsbucket.s3-website-ap-northeast-1.amazonaws.com
- B. www.myawsbucket.ap-northeast-1.amazonaws.com
- C. myawsbucket.amazonaws.com
- D. myawsbucket.tokyo.amazonaws.com

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 238

An open-source map application gathers data from several geolocation APIs. The application's source code repository is public and can be used by anyone, but the geolocation APIs must not be directly accessible.

A developer must implement a solution to prevent the credentials that are used to access the APIs from becoming public. The solution also must ensure that the application still functions properly.

Which solution will meet these requirements MOST cost-effectively?

- A. Store the credentials in AWS Security Token Service (AWS STS). Retrieve the credentials by using the GetCallerIdentity API operation.
- B. Store the credentials in AWS Systems Manager Parameter Store. Retrieve the credentials by using the GetParameter API operation.
- C. Store the credentials in AWS Secrets Manager. Retrieve the credentials by using the GetSecretValue API operation.
- D. Store the credentials in AWS Key Management Service (AWS KMS). Retrieve the credentials by using the GetPublicKey API operation.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

Secrets Manager: It is paid. The storage cost is $0.40 per secret per month and API interactions cost is $0.05 per 10,000 API calls. Parameter Store: For Standard parameters, No additional charge for storage and standard throughput. For higher throughput, API interactions cost is $0.05 per 10,000 API calls. For Advanced parameters, storage cost is $0.05 per advanced parameter per month and API interactions cost is $0.05 per 10,000 API calls.

NEW QUESTION # 239

A developer is incorporating AWS X-Ray into an application that handles personal identifiable information (PII). The application is hosted on Amazon EC2 instances. The application trace messages include encrypted PII and go to Amazon CloudWatch. The developer needs to ensure that no PII goes outside of the EC2 instances.

Which solution will meet these requirements?

- A. Use Amazon Macie to detect and hide PII. Call the X-Ray API from AWS Lambda.
- B. Use AWS Distro for Open Telemetry.
- C. Manually instrument the X-Ray SDK in the application code.
- D. Use the X-Ray auto-instrumentation agent.

Answer: D
