IAPP Certified Information Privacy Professional/Europe (CIPP/E) Sample Questions (Q22-Q27):

NEW QUESTION # 22

The GDPR requires controllers to supply data subjects with detailed information about the processing of their data. Where a controller obtains data directly from data subjects, which of the following items of information does NOT legally have to be supplied?

- A. The rights of access, erasure, restriction, and portability.
- B. The categories of personal data concerned.
- C. The recipients or categories of recipients.
- D. The right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority.

Answer: B

Explanation:

According to Article 13 of the GDPR, when a controller obtains personal data directly from the data subject, the controller must provide the data subject with certain information about the processing of their data, such as the identity and contact details of the controller, the purposes and legal basis of the processing, the recipients or categories of recipients, the period of storage, the rights of the data subject, the right to lodge a complaint, etc. However, the controller does not have to provide the data subject with the categories of personal data concerned, as this information is already known by the data subject, since they provided the data themselves. This is different from Article 14, which applies when the controller obtains personal data from a source other than the data subject, and requires the controller to inform the data subject of the categories of personal data concerned, as well as the source of the data. References:

- * Art. 13 GDPR - Information to be provided where personal data are collected from the data subject
- * Art. 14 GDPR - Information to be provided where personal data have not been obtained from the data subject
- * Article 13: Information to be provided where personal data are collected from the data subject - GDPR

NEW QUESTION # 23

Under what circumstances would the GDPR apply to personal data that exists in physical form, such as information contained in notebooks or hard copy files?

- A. Only where the personal data is to be subjected to specific computerized processing, such as image scanning or optical character recognition.
- B. Only where the personal data is handled in a sufficiently structured manner so as to form part of a filing system.
- C. Only where the personal data is treated by automated means in some way, such as computerized distribution or filing.
- D. Only where the personal data is produced as a physical output of specific automated processing activities, such as printing, labelling, or stamping.

NEW QUESTION # 24

What should a controller do after a data subject opts out of a direct marketing activity?

- A. Without undue delay, provide information to the data subject on the action that will be taken.
- B. Refrain from processing personal data relating to the data subject for the relevant type of communication.
- C. Take reasonable steps to inform third-party recipients that the data subject's personal data should be deleted and no longer processed.
- D. Without exception, securely delete all personal data relating to the data subject.

Answer: B

Explanation:

According to Article 21 of the GDPR, the data subject has the right to object at any time to the processing of his or her personal data for direct marketing purposes, which includes profiling related to such marketing. When the data subject exercises this right, the controller must stop processing the personal data for that purpose, unless it can demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds for the processing that override the interests, rights, and freedoms of the data subject, or for the establishment, exercise, or defense of legal claims. The controller must also inform the data subject of this right before the first communication with him or her, and in a clear and separate manner from other information. The controller must also provide the data subject with a simple and effective way to opt out of receiving direct marketing communications, such as an unsubscribe link or a STOP text message. The controller must respect the data subject's choice and refrain from sending any further direct marketing messages of the relevant type (e.g., email, phone, post, etc.) to the data subject, unless he or she opts in again. The controller does not need to delete the personal data of the data subject who opts out, unless the data subject also requests the erasure of his or her data under Article 17 of the GDPR, or the data is no longer necessary for the purposes for which it was collected or processed. The controller may also retain some minimal information about the data subject (such as name and email address) to ensure that his or her opt-out request is honored and that he or she is not contacted again for direct marketing purposes. The controller must also ensure that any third parties to whom it has disclosed the personal data of the data subject for direct marketing purposes are informed of the opt-out request and comply with it, unless this proves impossible or involves disproportionate effort. NEW QUESTION # 25

SCENARIO

Please use the following to answer the next question:

T-Craze, a German-headquartered specialty t-shirt company, was successfully selling to large German metropolitan cities. However, after a recent merger with another German-based company that was selling to a broader European market, T-Craze revamped its marketing efforts to sell to a wider audience. These efforts included a complete redesign of its logo to reflect the recent merger, and improvements to its website meant to capture more information about visitors through the use of cookies.

T-Craze also opened various office locations throughout Europe to help expand its business. While Germany Target, a renowned marketing firm based in the Philippines, to run its latest marketing campaign. After thorough research, Right Target determined that T-Craze is most successful with customers between the ages of 18 and 22. Thus, its first campaign targeted university students in several European capitals, which yielded nearly 40% new customers for T-Craze in one quarter. Right Target also ran subsequent campaigns for T-Craze, though with much less success.

The last two campaigns included a wider demographic group and resulted in countless unsubscribe requests, including a large number in Spain. In fact, the Spanish data protection authority received a complaint from Sofia, a mid-career investment banker. Sofia was upset after receiving a marketing communication even after unsubscribing from such communications from the Right Target on behalf of T-Craze.

What is the best option for the lead regulator when responding to the Spanish supervisory authority's notice that it plans to take action regarding Sofia's complaint?

- A. Reject, because Right Target's processing was conducted throughout Europe.
- B. Accept, because it did not receive any complaints.
- C. Accept, because GDPR permits non-lead authorities to take action for such complaints.
- D. Reject, because GDPR does not allow other supervisory authorities to take action if there is a lead authority.

Answer: C

Explanation:

According to the Free CIPP/E Study Guide, page 16, "the GDPR provides for a one-stop-shop mechanism, which means that a controller or processor with establishments in several Member States will have only one supervisory authority as its interlocutor, which will act as the lead authority. However, this does not mean that the lead authority has exclusive competence to supervise all processing activities of the controller or processor throughout the EU. The GDPR also allows for the possibility of a relevant and reasoned objection by a concerned supervisory authority, which may trigger the consistency mechanism and the involvement of the European Data Protection Board (EDPB). Moreover, the GDPR recognizes the right of any supervisory authority to adopt urgent measures on its own territory or to commence legal proceedings before a court in its Member State in order to protect the rights and freedoms of data subjects." Therefore, the lead regulator should accept the Spanish supervisory authority's notice that it plans to take action regarding Sofia's complaint, as the GDPR permits non-lead authorities to take action for such complaints, especially when they involve urgent measures or legal proceedings to protect the data subjects' rights and freedoms. The other options are incorrect, as they do not reflect the GDPR's provisions on the one-stop-shop mechanism and the cooperation and consistency mechanisms.
