NEW QUESTION # 364

A customer is deploying a new application across two ACI pods that is sensitive to latency and jitter. The application sets the DSCP values of packets to AF31 and CS6, respectively. Which configuration changes must be made on the APIC to support the new application and prevent packets from being delayed or dropped between pods?

- A. disable DSCP translation policy
- B. disable DSCP mapping on the IPN devices
- C. align the ACI QoS levels and IPN QoS policies
- D. align the custom QoS policy on the EPG site in the customer tenant

Answer: C

Explanation:

To support a new application that is sensitive to latency and jitter and sets the DSCP values of packets to AF31 and CS6, it is necessary to align the ACI Quality of Service (QoS) levels and Inter-Pod Network (IPN) QoS policies. This alignment ensures that the DSCP values are preserved and respected across the ACI fabric and the IPN, preventing packets from being delayed or dropped between pods.
