NEW QUESTION # 250

Company GDD plans to acquire Company HGG, an unlisted company which has been in business for 3 years.

Company HGG has incurred losses in its first 3 years but is expected to become highly profitable in the near future. There are no listed companies in the country operating in the same business field as Company HGG. The future success of Company HGG's business and hence the future growth rate in earnings and dividends is difficult to determine. Company GDD is assessing the validity of using the dividend growth method to value Company HGG. Which THREE of the following are weaknesses of using the dividend growth model to value an unlisted company such as Company HGG?

- A. The future growth rate in earnings and dividends will be difficult to accurately determine
- B. The dividend growth model does not take the time value of money into consideration
- C. The company has been unprofitable to date and hence, there is no established dividend payment pattern
- D. The cost of capital will be difficult to estimate
- E. The future projected dividend stream is used as the basis for the valuation

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:

Company HGG is young, unlisted, loss-making so far, and has uncertain growth.

Weaknesses of using the dividend growth model here:

- A). Future growth rate in earnings/dividends is hard to estimate - very true for an early-stage, high-uncertainty business.
 - C). It has been unprofitable and has no established dividend pattern, so the basic inputs to the model (D_0 and g) are unreliable.
 - E). Cost of capital is difficult to estimate for an unlisted company (no directly observable beta or market data).
- B is just a description of the model, not a specific weakness here, and D is incorrect because the dividend growth model does discount future dividends (it fully incorporates time value of money).

Answer Q121: A, C, E
