NEW QUESTION # 165

Your network contains an Active Directory domain. The domain contains 1,000 computers that run Windows 11. Your company uses Microsoft Teams.

You need to ensure that the computers can prioritize audio and video during Teams meetings.

From the Microsoft Teams admin center, you set Insert Quality of Service (QoS) markers for real-time media traffic to On. What should you do next?

- A. From the Teams PowerShell module, create a network roaming policy.
- B. From Group Policy Management, create a Group Policy setting to specify the DSCP values.
- C. From Meeting settings in the Microsoft Teams admin center, configure the media port range to use any available ports.
- D. From Meeting policies in the Microsoft Teams admin center, configure the Media bit rate (Kbs) setting.

Answer: B

Using port-based tagging, your network's router examines an incoming packet, and if the packet arrived using a certain port or range of ports, it identifies it as a certain media type and puts it in the queue for that type, adding a predetermined DSCP mark to the IP Packet header so other devices can recognize its traffic type and give it priority in their queue.

NEW QUESTION # 166

Task 5

You need to prevent incoming Teams call notifications when users are already on a Teams call or in a Teams meeting. The solution must NOT reject the call.

Answer:

Explanation:

See the solution in the explanation below

Explanation:

To prevent incoming Teams call notifications when users are already on a Teams call or in a Teams meeting, you can use the Teams admin center to enable the Mute notifications during meetings and calls option. This option will suppress the incoming call notifications without rejecting the call. The caller will still hear the ringing tone and the callee can still answer the call from the Teams app or the taskbar. Here are the steps to enable this option:

Sign in to the Teams admin center with your Microsoft 365 username and password1.

In the left navigation, go to Teams > Teams update policies.

Select an existing policy or create a new one by clicking Add.

In the Update policy pane, under Meetings and calls, turn on the toggle for Mute notifications during meetings and calls.

Click Save and then Close.

Note: You can assign different update policies to different users or groups of users. For more information, see Manage update policies in Microsoft Teams2.
