NEW QUESTION # 183
A company plans to use master planning in Dynamics 365 Supply Chain Management. The company will sell items between legal entities.
The company has several facilities across legal entities that can manufacture the same products. Same products are produced only in some plants. To meet product demand, when one facility is over capacity, another facility is used to fulfill the downstream demand.
The organizational entities are:
* LegalEntityA: Plant 1.2, and 3
* LegalEntityB: Plant4and 5
* LegalEntityC: Plant 6. 7, and 8
The following plants must be planned together:
* Plant 1. Plant 3. and Plant 4
* Plant 2. Plant 6. and Plant 8
* Plant 5 and Plant 7
You need to configure master planning for the facilities.
Which configuration mechanism should you use?

- A. Item model groups
- B. Coverage groups
- C. Production groups
- D. Intercompany planning groups

Answer: D

Explanation:
The configuration mechanism that you should use is Intercompany planning groups. Here is the explanation:
Intercompany planning groups are groups of companies that are planned together in master planning. Intercompany planning groups allow you to include planned downstream demand from other companies in your master plan, and also to peg across companies by using multilevel pegging1. You can use intercompany planning groups to plan for intercompany sales and purchases, and to optimize the production capacity across companies1.
In this scenario, you need to configure master planning for the facilities that must be planned together. To do this, you should create intercompany planning groups that include the relevant plants from different legal entities. For example, you can create an intercompany planning group that includes Plant 1, Plant 3, and Plant 4 from LegalEntityA and LegalEntityB. You can also specify the scheduling sequence for the companies in the intercompany planning group, which determines the order in which master planning is run for each company1.
The other options are not correct, because they do not involve intercompany planning. Production groups are groups of production orders that share the same parameters, such as ledger accounts and posting profiles2. Item model groups are groups of items that share the same inventory policies, such as reservation, tracking, and costing3. Coverage groups are groups of items that share the same coverage settings, such as coverage code, period, and time fence.

1: Intercompany planning 2: Production groups 3: Item model groups : [Coverage groups]

NEW QUESTION # 186

A company uses multiple Dynamics 365 applications to track and repair equipment.

The company wants to improve its repair order process. Repair technicians frequently encounter unexpected issues daily. The technicians must be empowered to address the issues and create new work orders by doing the following:

* Provide step-by-step, just-in-time training for work order completion in the field by using videos and text.

* Document work order creation in a single, printable document.

* Report on the use of hands-on training.

You need to implement a solution forth requirements.

Which solution should you implement for each requirement? To answer, drag the appropriate solutions to the correct requirements. Each solution may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

To implement a solution for the requirements, you should use the following solutions:

* Just-in-time training: You should use Dynamics 365 Guides. This solution allows you to create interactive, step-by-step learning experiences for repair technicians in the field. You can use videos, images, and text to provide instructions and tips for work order completion. You can also use mixed reality tools to overlay holograms on physical objects and guide technicians through complex tasks.

* Work order creation document: You should use Dynamics 365 Supply Chain Management. This solution allows you to create and manage work orders for equipment maintenance and repair. You can use the Work order page to enter the details of the work order, such as the customer, the equipment, the service tasks, the materials, and the costs. You can also print a work order report that summarizes the information in a single document.

* Training reporting: You should use Dynamics 365 Guides. This solution allows you to track and analyze the usage and effectiveness of your guides. You can use Power BI dashboards to view metrics such as completion rates, duration, errors, and feedback for each guide and step. You can also filter the data by date, location, operator, or device.

[What is Dynamics 365 Guides?] : [Work orders overview] : [Print a work order report] : [Analyze guide effectiveness]
