WGU Operations Management (C215, VDC2) Sample Questions (Q49-Q54):

NEW QUESTION # 49

Which two areas should managers consider in order to adapt to the business dynamics affecting their company?

Choose 2 answers

- A. Their advertising costs
- B. Their control over internal operations
- C. Their influence over future legislation and regulations
- D. Their influence and leverage over suppliers

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

Managers must consider control over internal operations and influence and leverage over suppliers to adapt effectively to changing business dynamics.

Internal operational control determines how quickly a firm can:

- * Adjust capacity
- * Improve quality
- * Reduce cost
- * Respond to demand changes

Supplier influence is equally critical in modern supply chains. Strong supplier relationships improve:

- * Reliability
- * Cost stability
- * Innovation
- * Responsiveness

Operations Management emphasizes that competitiveness increasingly depends on supply chain coordination, not isolated firm performance.

The other options are less relevant:

- * Firms rarely influence future legislation
- * Advertising costs relate to marketing strategy, not operational adaptability. Thus, effective supply chain management requires both internal excellence and external collaboration.

NEW QUESTION # 50

Which statement is true about capacity requirements planning (CRP)?

- A. Available capacity is compared to calculated workloads of relevant items.
- B. Production capacity is created for future production items.
- C. Each product item is individually addressed regardless of relevant holistic processes.
- D. Human capital adequacy is analyzed for given work centers and production items.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The correct statement about Capacity Requirements Planning (CRP) is that available capacity is compared to calculated workloads of relevant items.

CRP is a planning technique used after material requirements planning (MRP). While MRP determines what and when materials are needed, CRP verifies whether the organization has sufficient capacity—in terms of machines, labor, and work centers—to execute the planned production schedule.

CRP works by:

- * Translating planned orders into workload requirements
- * Assigning those workloads to specific work centers
- * Comparing required capacity with available capacity
- * Identifying overloads or underutilization

The incorrect options misrepresent CRP:

- * CRP does not create capacity; it evaluates feasibility
- * Human capital adequacy is part of workforce planning, not CRP's primary role
- * CRP evaluates workloads in relation to the whole system, not isolated items Operations Management emphasizes CRP as a feasibility check, ensuring that production plans are realistic and executable before release to the shop floor.

NEW QUESTION # 51

What is a major factor in the decision to locate a business near its primary market territory?

- A. Proximity to customers
- B. Proximity to a community center
- C. Proximity to labor
- D. Proximity to parks

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation (#250 words):

The dominant factor in locating a business near its primary market territory is proximity to customers.

From an Operations Management perspective, closeness to customers:

- * Reduces transportation and delivery time
- * Improves service responsiveness
- * Enhances customer satisfaction
- * Supports demand growth

This is especially critical for service organizations and distribution-intensive businesses, where customer access and speed are competitive advantages.

While proximity to labor is important, it does not define market territory. Community centers and parks are not operational drivers. Locating near customers aligns capacity with demand, minimizes logistics complexity, and strengthens market presence.

NEW QUESTION # 52

Which continuous improvement method does Cpk measure?

- A. Parts per million on the capability index
- B. What a process is capable of and how long it will take to conclude
- C. The most common measurement process
- D. How close one is to a target and how consistent one is with the average performance

Answer: D

Explanation:

The process capability index Cpk measures how close a process is to its target and how consistent it is around the average performance.

Cpk is a key metric in Six Sigma and continuous improvement methodologies. It evaluates both:

- * Process centering (distance from specification limits)
- * Process variation (spread of data)

Unlike Cp, which assumes the process is centered, Cpk accounts for actual process performance relative to upper and lower specification limits. This makes it a more realistic indicator of quality capability.

In Operations Management, Cpk helps organizations:

- * Assess whether a process can meet customer specifications
- * Identify improvement priorities
- * Reduce defects before they occur

Higher Cpk values indicate better performance:

- * Cpk # 1.33 is generally acceptable
- * Cpk # 2.0 aligns with Six Sigma performance

The other options confuse Cpk with defect rates or cycle time measures. While defects per million opportunities (DPMO) are related, Cpk specifically evaluates process capability, not output counts.

By focusing on consistency and target alignment, Cpk supports preventive quality management and data-driven continuous improvement.

NEW QUESTION # 53

What is the common theme in total quality management (TQM) across all functions in an organization?

- A. To satisfy customer needs
- B. To enhance management software
- C. To reward people rather than teams
- D. To ensure profit from product changes

Answer: A

Explanation:

The unifying and central theme of Total Quality Management (TQM) across all organizational functions is to satisfy customer needs. TQM is built on the premise that quality is defined by the customer, not by internal standards alone. Every function—marketing, operations, finance, human resources, procurement, and logistics—contributes directly or indirectly to customer satisfaction.

In Operations Management, this philosophy translates into:

- * Designing processes that consistently meet customer requirements
 - * Reducing variability and defects that impact customer experience
 - * Aligning internal performance metrics with external satisfaction measures
- Customer satisfaction goes beyond product features. It includes:
- * Reliability
 - * Timeliness
 - * Service responsiveness
 - * Ease of use
 - * Perceived value

Options such as management software, individual rewards, or profit from changes are secondary outcomes, not the core objective.

Profitability is achieved because customer needs are met consistently, not as a substitute goal.

TQM frameworks such as Deming's philosophy, ISO standards, and Six Sigma all reinforce customer focus as the guiding principle.

Continuous improvement efforts are justified and prioritized based on their impact on customer satisfaction.

Therefore, satisfying customer needs serves as the strategic anchor that aligns all functions, drives collaboration, and sustains long-term organizational success.
