Cisco Certified Support Technician (CCST) Cybersecurity Sample Questions (Q249-Q254):

NEW QUESTION # 249
What is a common security threat in which an attacker attempts to overwhelm a targeted system by flooding it with Internet traffic?

- A. Ransomware
- B. SQL injection
- C. Phishing
- D. Distributed Denial of Service (DDoS) attack

Answer: D

Explanation:
Option 1: Ransomware is a type of malicious software that encrypts a victim's files and demands a ransom in exchange for the decryption key. While it can cause damage to systems, it is not specifically designed to overwhelm a system with Internet traffic.
Option 2: Correct. A Distributed Denial of Service (DDoS) attack is a common security threat in which an attacker attempts to overwhelm a targeted system by flooding it with Internet traffic. This can result in a loss of service availability for legitimate users.
Option 3: Phishing is a type of social engineering attack in which an attacker masquerades as a trustworthy entity to trick individuals into providing sensitive information. It does not involve overwhelming a system with Internet traffic.
Option 4: SQL injection is a type of web application attack in which an attacker manipulates a SQL query to gain unauthorized access to a database. It does not involve overwhelming a system with Internet traffic.

NEW QUESTION # 250
Which state of data is appropriate for encrypting sensitive information stored in a database?

- A. Data in motion
- B. Data at rest
- C. Data in transit
- D. Data in use

Answer: B

Explanation:
Data at rest refers to data that is stored on storage devices such as hard drives, databases, or backups. Encrypting sensitive information in a database while it is at rest ensures that even if the database is compromised, the data remains protected, and unauthorized access or theft of the data becomes more challenging.

NEW QUESTION # 251
What does an Intrusion Detection System (IDS) do in endpoint security?

- A. Encrypts the data transmitted between the endpoint and the network
- B. Detects and alerts on suspicious activities on the endpoint
- C. Identifies and blocks malware on the endpoint
- D. Prevents unauthorized access to the endpoint

Answer: B

Explanation:
An Intrusion Detection System (IDS) is designed to detect and alert on suspicious activities that may indicate a security breach or an attack on the endpoint. IDS monitors various aspects of the endpoint, such as network traffic, system logs, and behavior patterns, to identify potential threats and security incidents. When suspicious activities are detected, the IDS generates alerts that can be used by security personnel to investigate and respond to the potential threats.

NEW QUESTION # 252
Which of the following is a key feature of a disaster recovery plan?

- A. Data encryption
- B. Offsite backups
- C. Regular software updates
- D. Employee training

Answer: B

Explanation:
Offsite backups are an essential feature of a disaster recovery plan. They involve storing copies of data in a separate physical location away from the primary site. In the event of a disaster, these backups ensure that data can be restored and accessed even if the primary site is no longer functional.

NEW QUESTION # 253
Which network security technology passively monitors network traffic and compares the captured packet stream with known malicious signatures?

- A. Honeypot
- B. IPS
- C. Proxy Server
- D. IDS

Answer: D

Explanation:
The CCST Cybersecurity course states that an Intrusion Detection System (IDS) passively monitors network or system traffic and analyzes it against a database of known threat signatures or behavioral patterns.
"IDS devices inspect network traffic, compare it to known malicious signatures or anomalies, and generate alerts for suspicious activity without actively blocking traffic." (CCST Cybersecurity, Basic Network Security Concepts, IDS and IPS section, Cisco Networking Academy) A is correct: IDS is passive and signature-based.
B (IPS) is active and can block traffic.
C (Proxy Server) handles requests between clients and servers.
D (Honeypot) is a decoy system to attract attackers.
