EMC Dell PowerProtect Data Manager Deploy 2023 Exam Sample Questions (Q130-Q135):

NEW QUESTION # 130

Which type of Microsoft Exchange DAG configuration must be used to perform a backup from passive databases, unless the database has a single active copy?

- A. Active backup
- B. Passive backup
- C. Secondary backup
- D. Preferred backup

Answer: D

Explanation:

When protecting Microsoft Exchange Server Database Availability Groups (DAG), PowerProtect Data Manager allows administrators to manage how the backup load is distributed across cluster nodes.

Preferred Backup Node: The "Preferred" configuration is used to specify that the backup should prioritize a specific node, typically a passive node, to reduce the performance impact on the active node serving users.

Logic: If the preferred node is available and contains a healthy passive copy of the database, the backup is taken from there. If the database only has a single active copy (no passive copies exist or are healthy), PPDM will default to backing up that active copy to ensure data protection, regardless of the preferred setting.

NEW QUESTION # 131

What is the minimum supported retention period when configuring a Cloud Tier protection policy within PowerProtect Data Manager?

Response:

- A. 30 days
- B. 14 days
- C. 21 days
- D. 7 days

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 132

Which backup type does PowerProtect Data Manager use to capture only the changes since the last full backup?

Response:

- A. Differential backup
- B. Full backup
- C. Incremental backup
- D. Snapshot backup

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 133

What unit of time does the "backup once every" field display when configuring a PowerProtect Data Manager disaster recovery backup?

- A. Hours
- B. Weeks
- C. Minutes
- D. Days

Answer: A

Explanation:

In Dell PowerProtect Data Manager (PPDM), protecting the application itself is a critical administrative task. This is handled through the Server Disaster Recovery (DR) backup configuration.

When an administrator navigates to Infrastructure > Disaster Recovery to set up or edit the DR backup schedule, the system requires a frequency to be defined for the backup of the PPDM metadata and configuration database.

The Schedule Field: The specific field labeled "Backup Once Every" is designed to ensure that the system state is captured frequently enough to meet the Recovery Point Objective (RPO) of the management plane.

The Unit: According to the PPDM Administration Guide, this field is expressed in Hours. By default, it is often set to 8 or 12 hours, but it can be adjusted by the user within the allowed numerical range (typically 1 to 24 hours).

Storage Target: These DR backups are sent to a pre-configured PowerProtect DD (Data Domain) system to ensure that, in the event of a total PPDM VM failure, the environment can be restored using the ISO and the metadata stored on the protection storage.

Setting this in hours allows for a more granular protection cycle than "Days" or "Weeks," which would be insufficient for a dynamic environment where protection policies and assets change throughout the day.

NEW QUESTION # 134

When integrating PowerProtect Data Manager with MS-SQL, what is a key consideration?

Response:

- A. Server location
- B. Number of users
- C. SQL version
- D. Database size

Answer: D
