NEW QUESTION # 260

Note: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution.

After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen.

You are configuring Microsoft Defender for Identity integration with Active Directory.

From the Microsoft Defender for identity portal, you need to configure several accounts for attackers to exploit.

Solution: From Azure Identity Protection, you configure the sign-in risk policy.

Does this meet the goal?

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:
Azure Identity Protection is used to detect and remediate risky sign-ins based on user behavior and risk levels, but it does not configure decoy or Honeytoken accounts. Honeytoken accounts are a Defender for Identity feature, not an Identity Protection feature.
The solution described (configuring sign-in risk policies in Azure Identity Protection) relates to conditional access and risk-based sign-in responses, not to creating monitored decoy accounts.
Hence, the goal of configuring several accounts for attacker exploitation (Honeytoken monitoring) is not met by this solution.

NEW QUESTION # 261
You have an Azure Functions app that generates thousands of alerts in Azure Security Center each day for normal activity.
You need to hide the alerts automatically in Security Center.
Which three actions should you perform in sequence in Security Center? Each correct answer presents part of the solution.
