- A. The IP addresses of the management and maintenance network ports must be in different network segments; otherwise, there will be a route conflict.
- B. To change the IP address of the management network port on the command-line interface (CLI), the IP address of the maintenance terminal and the default IP address of the storage management network port must be in the same network segment if the administrator logs in to the system through a serial port.
- C. To change the IP address of the management network port on the CLI, log in to the CLI and run the "change system management_ip" command.
- D. The administrator needs to apply for and activate a license before changing the IP address of the management network port.

Explanation:

Changing the management network port IP in Huawei flash storage systems is a common initialization task. The *HCIP-Storage V5.5 Training Material (Module 5: Storage System Maintenance and Troubleshooting)* states:

- Option A: False. "The CLI command to change the management IP is 'change system management_ip_address,' not 'change system management_ip.'"

- Option B: True. "Management and maintenance network ports must use different network segments to avoid routing conflicts."

- Option C: False. "No license is required to change the management network port IP address; it is a basic configuration task."

- Option D: True. "For serial port login, the maintenance terminal's IP and the default management IP must be in the same segment to establish connectivity." Thus, options A and C are false.
