The Beryl Institute Certified Patient Experience Professional Sample Questions (Q146-Q151):

NEW QUESTION # 146

Which term BEST describes the ethnographic approach of data collection?

- A. Focus group
- B. Shadowing
- C. Mystery shopping
- D. Guided tour

Answer: B

Explanation:

This question aligns with Design and Innovation , particularly human-centered design and qualitative data collection methods. An ethnographic approach involves directly observing individuals in their natural environment to understand behaviors, interactions, and experiences in real context. Shadowing (Option D) best represents this approach because it involves following patients, families, or staff through their care journey to gain firsthand insight into workflows, challenges, and emotional experiences. This method helps uncover gaps that may not be revealed through surveys or interviews alone. Option A (focus groups) gathers opinions in a group setting, Option B (guided tour) provides a structured overview rather than observation, and Option C (mystery shopping) evaluates service anonymously but lacks deep contextual understanding. CPXP emphasizes ethnographic methods like shadowing to design more empathetic, patient-centered improvements.

NEW QUESTION # 147

What do patient feedback measures capture patient perceptions of?

- A. What and when things happened
- B. Where and when things happened
- C. What and how frequently things happened
- D. Where and how frequently things happened

Answer: C

Explanation:

This question aligns with Measurement and Analysis, focusing on how patient experience data is captured and interpreted. Patient feedback measures, such as surveys (e.g., HCAHPS), are designed to capture patients' perceptions of what occurred during their care and how often those events happened. Therefore, Option B is correct. These measures focus on frequency-based questions like "How often did nurses listen carefully?" rather than exact timing or location. This approach provides standardized, comparable data that reflects consistency of care delivery. Options A, C, and D emphasize time or location, which are not the primary focus of patient perception surveys. CPXP principles highlight that understanding both what happened and the consistency of those experiences is essential for identifying improvement opportunities and enhancing patient-centered care.

NEW QUESTION # 148

Which data visualization illustrates the impact of process change to staff related to patient experience improvement efforts?

- A. Bar graphs
- B. Run charts
- C. Pie charts
- D. Box and whisker diagrams

Answer: B

Explanation:

This question aligns with Measurement and Analysis, particularly the use of data visualization to demonstrate improvement over time. Run charts (Option C) are the most appropriate tool because they display data points in chronological order, allowing staff to see trends, shifts, and the direct impact of process changes over time.

CPXP principles emphasize that run charts are especially effective in quality improvement because they make it easier to identify whether changes lead to sustained improvement. In contrast, bar graphs (A) compare categories, pie charts (B) show proportions, and box-and-whisker plots (D) display distribution and variability—none of which clearly show change over time. Run charts help engage staff by visually connecting their actions to outcomes, reinforcing accountability and supporting continuous improvement in patient experience.

NEW QUESTION # 149

Patient Experience Mapping identifies the ideal state defined by which of the following four dimensions of care?

- A. Patient assessment of safety, access to care, availability of information, and patient engagement
- B. Patient assessment of outcomes, physical environment, communication, and family/care partner participation
- C. Patient perceptions of process efficiency, access to care, patient engagement, and presence of teamwork
- D. Patient perceptions on quality of care, communication, physical environment, and emotional support

Answer: D

Explanation:

This question falls under Design and Innovation, specifically patient experience mapping and journey design.

In CPXP practice, the ideal patient experience state is commonly defined through key experiential dimensions that reflect how patients perceive care. Option C is correct because it includes quality of care, communication, physical environment, and emotional support, which are foundational components of the patient experience across the continuum. These dimensions align with widely recognized frameworks (such as patient-centered care principles and HCAHPS domains) that emphasize both clinical and emotional aspects of care delivery.

Options A, B, and D include relevant elements but do not fully capture the holistic, perception-based framework used in experience mapping. CPXP emphasizes designing care experiences that address both functional and emotional needs from the patient's perspective.

NEW QUESTION # 150

Which strategy BEST demonstrates an effective integration of patient and family advisors?

- A. Utilizing patient and family advisors as members of interview panels for hospital key leadership positions
- B. Inviting families in the hospital or hospital board members who have been patients to join the patient and family advisory council
- C. Hosting a reception for patient and family advisors to meet hospital executive leadership
- D. Presenting completed plans for newly designed patient rooms to the patient and family advisory council

Answer: A

Explanation:

This question aligns with Partnership and Advocacy, emphasizing meaningful engagement of patient and family advisors. Option B is correct because it reflects true integration and partnership, where advisors are actively involved in organizational decision-making processes, such as hiring leadership. CPXP principles stress that effective engagement goes beyond symbolic involvement and requires shared decision-making and co-design. Option A is more social than strategic, Option C focuses on recruitment rather than integration, and Option D represents a late-stage consultation rather than early involvement. Including advisors on interview panels demonstrates that their perspectives are valued and embedded in critical organizational functions. This level of engagement ensures that leadership aligns with patient-centered values and strengthens a culture of partnership and accountability.
