NEW QUESTION # 160

- A. the Provincial or Territorial Professional Association.
- B. the Canadian Council of Professional Engineers and Canadian Council of Professional Geoscientists.
- C. an act of legislature.
- D. the Provincial Ethics Commission.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Code of Ethics is established by the Provincial or Territorial Professional Association. These bodies are responsible for regulating the standards of practice within their respective provinces or territories, including the establishment and enforcement of ethical guidelines.

NEW QUESTION # 161

Alex, a professional member, is a manager at a construction firm. His boss asks him to fill two student job positions (a student engineering position and a student geoscience position) for the summer. After creating a Job posting and advertising the positions for one month, Alex receives 40 applications. During the review process, he discovers that the daughter of his old friend from university is one of the student job applicants.

Alex is concerned that proceeding with the review of the applications will create a conflict of interest for him.

What actions can Alex take to remove any possible conflict of Interest in this situation?

- A. Remove the daughter's Job application and proceed with the review of all others.
- B. Review the daughter's application with the others to see If It Is good enough to go on to the next step before telling his boss.
- C. Tell his boss that he has known the applicant's father since university and ask the boss to decide if he can proceed.
- D. Assume a professional attitude and consider the daughter's application the same as all others.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The best action Alex can take to remove any possible conflict of interest is to inform his boss about his connection to one of the applicants and ask for guidance on whether he should proceed with the review (Option C). This maintains transparency and integrity, ensuring that the selection process is fair and unbiased, and that any decisions made are free from personal influence.

NEW QUESTION # 162

A professional member monitors production at a food plant. While walking the plant at the end of a shift, the member sees a major hydraulic oil leak on the ground outside, near the only conveyor that brings raw product into the plant. There is a scheduled maintenance outage the next day, and dealing with the Issue right now would hurt production goals, and thus affect the member's chance of bonuses.

- A. stop production, have the issue fixed, and report the spill if required by provincial law
- B. Inform maintenance immediately so that they can plan for its repair on the scheduled outage
- C. ignore the issue and let the next supervisor find and deal with it
- D. tell the next supervisor to deal with it on the next shift

Answer: A

Explanation:

The most appropriate and ethical action for the professional member to take is C. The professional should stop production, have the issue fixed, and report the spill if required by provincial law. This decision prioritizes safety, environmental protection, and legal compliance over personal gain or production goals. It aligns with the ethical obligation of professionals to safeguard the health, safety, and welfare of the public and the environment, even if it may impact financial incentives like bonuses.

NEW QUESTION # 163

Which of the following bodies have been given the legal authority to enforce their codes of ethics or professional misconduct provisions?

- A. National Societies of Professional Engineers and Geoscientists Canada
- B. Engineers Canada and Geoscientists Canada
- C. Provincial/territorial regulators
- D. Technical societies

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Canada, the legal authority to regulate the practice of engineering and geoscience—including registration/licensure, standards of practice, and enforcement of codes of ethics and professional misconduct provisions—comes from provincial/territorial legislation. Regulators (the statutory associations/colleges) act in the public interest and are empowered to investigate complaints, conduct discipline proceedings, and impose sanctions such as reprimands, fines, licence restrictions, suspension, or cancellation. Technical societies (A) support professional development and knowledge exchange but generally do not have statutory enforcement power over licensure or professional discipline. Engineers Canada and Geoscientists Canada (C) are national coordinating bodies that support standards, mobility, and collaboration, but they do not licence or discipline individual professionals (that authority remains with the provincial/territorial regulators). Option D is not a Canadian licensing/discipline authority. Therefore, B is correct.

NEW QUESTION # 164

A Canadian mining company (the "client") hires a licensed professional geoscientist as a consultant to assess a site's economic development potential. During the assessment, the professional identifies significant environmental risks associated with the development. What should be the professional's primary responsibility in this situation?

- A. Prioritize the economic potential of the development in order to satisfy their contractual obligations to the client.
- B. Disclose the environmental concerns to the client and recommend extraction methods that mitigate the risk of occurrence.
- C. Ensure that the site's economic potential is realized in order to meet the resource needs of the public and the professional's duty to client.
- D. Ensure that the company's mining development does not proceed due to the associated environmental risks.

Answer: B

Explanation:

NPPE ethics requires professionals to hold paramount the public interest, including environmental protection, while also serving clients competently and honestly. The appropriate response when identifying significant environmental risks is to disclose them to the client, ensure the client understands implications, and recommend practical measures to mitigate or manage risks consistent with law, standards, and good practice.

Option C reflects that balance: truthful disclosure plus risk-reduction recommendations. Option A is too absolute because the professional's role is to provide competent advice and protect the public interest; the decision to proceed is ultimately the client's (subject to regulatory approvals), unless the work would be illegal or unsafe to the point the professional must refuse involvement or report. Option B is wrong because economic goals do not override environmental/public duties. Option D is also wrong because it presumes development must proceed to meet public needs, disregarding environmental risks and the requirement to manage them responsibly. Therefore, C best represents the professional's primary responsibility.
