Salesforce Platform Developer I (PDI) Sample Questions (Q53-Q58):

NEW QUESTION # 53

Universal Containers (UC) uses a custom object called Vendor. The Vendor custom object has a master-detail relationship with the standard Account object.

Based on some internal discussions, the UC administrator tried to change the master-detail relationship to a lookup relationship, but was not able to do so.

What is a possible reason that this change was not permitted?

- A. The organization wide default for the Vendor object is Public Read/Write.
- B. The Account object does not allow changing a field type for a custom field.
- C. The Account object has a roll up summary field on the Vendor object.
- D. Some of the Vendor records have null for the Account field.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Master-detail relationships allow roll-up summary fields to aggregate data from child records. If a roll-up summary field exists on the Account object, the relationship cannot be changed to a lookup because lookup relationships do not support roll-up fields.

Why not other options?

A: Null values in the Vendor records do not prevent the change.

C: Custom fields can have their types changed as long as dependencies like roll-up fields are not present.

D: Organization-wide defaults do not affect the ability to change relationships.

- C. All triggers must have at least one line of test coverage.
- D. Should deploy during business hours to ensure feedback can be quickly addressed.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

* A. 75% Test Coverage:Salesforce mandates that 75% of all Apex code must be covered by tests to be deployable to production.

Reference:Testing Apex Code

Incorrect Options:

B: Assertions (System.assert) are recommended but not required.

NEW QUESTION # 56

What will be the output in the debug log in the event of a QueryException during a call to the @query method in the following Example?

- A. Querying Accounts. Custom Exception.

NEW QUESTION # 57

A developer creates a custom exception as shown below:

public class ParityException extends Exception { }

What are two ways the developer can fire the exception in Apex? Choose 2 answers

- A. `throw new ParityException ('parity does not match');`
- B. `new ParityException. ('parity does not match');`
- C. `throw new ParityException();`
- D. `new ParityException ();`

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

To fire an exception in Apex, the developer must use the throw statement along with an instance of the exception.

Option A: `throw new ParityException();`

Correct Way.

Creates a new instance of ParityException with no message and throws it.

Syntax is correct for throwing an exception.

Option C: `throw new ParityException('parity does not match');`

Correct Way.

Creates a new instance of ParityException with a custom message and throws it.

The exception class inherits from Exception, which allows passing a message to the constructor.

Options Not Correct:

Option B: `new ParityException('parity does not match');`

Incorrect.

This statement creates a new instance of ParityException but does not throw it.

Without the throw keyword, the exception is not fired.

Option D: `new ParityException();`

Incorrect.

Similar to Option B, this creates a new instance but does not throw it.

The exception will not affect the flow unless it is thrown.

Conclusion:

The two ways the developer can fire the exception are:

Option A: `throw new ParityException();`

Option C: `throw new ParityException('parity does not match');`

Both use the throw statement to fire the exception.
