NEW QUESTION # 67

According to a study by Berg, Koelbel, and Rigobon, the correlation of ESG ratings is:

- A. High, and this can be a source of insight for investors
- B. Low, and this poses a challenge for empirical research
- C. Low, and this motivates companies to improve their ESG performance

Answer: B

Explanation:

Berg, Koelbel, and Rigobon (2022) found that ESG ratings from different providers (e.g., MSCI, Sustainalytics, FTSE) have low correlation, making comparisons difficult. This inconsistency hinders empirical research and leads to investor confusion.

NEW QUESTION # 68

Which of the following is best referred to as secondary ESG data?

- A. Bloomberg ESG Disclosure Score.
- B. A transcript of an interview with a company's chief financial officer (CFO).
- C. Survey results on employee satisfaction provided by Glassdoor.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Secondary ESG data refers to information collected from sources other than official company disclosures, often from external third-party sources.

Primary ESG data: Directly provided by companies in sustainability reports, regulatory filings, or financial statements.

Secondary ESG data: Derived from third-party sources such as news articles, employee reviews, external surveys, or social media analysis.

Why is B correct?

Glassdoor employee satisfaction surveys provide insights into workplace culture, labor rights, and social issues—all key ESG aspects. This is not direct company disclosure but rather third-party, externally collected data.

Why not A or C?

A (Bloomberg ESG Score) is primary data because Bloomberg compiles ESG disclosures directly from companies.

C (Interview transcript with CFO) is primary data because it comes directly from company leadership.
