Carleton University – School of Mathematics and Statistics
STAT 2601 – Sample Test 1

NOTE: This sample test is intended to give you extra practice before the real test. You should not expect any of these questions to appear on the real test. To get the full benefit of this sample test, you should put aside two hours and attempt to answer these questions using only the formula sheet. Afterwards, you should then grade yourself strictly using the solutions and grading scheme provided. This will help you identify any weak areas in your knowledge of the course material before the real test.

Part A: Long-Answer Questions

QUESTION 1, [5 points] Each time a person orders a food delivery from Sweet Holes Donut Shop, the restaurant sends the incorrect order with probability 0.3. Consider 12 randomly select food delivery orders. Let X represent the number of incorrect orders.

- State the name of the probability distribution of X , and list the values of all relevant parameters.
- What is the probability that at least three of the orders are incorrect?

QUESTION 2, [7 points] Out of all customers that enter Sweet Holes Donut Shop, 83% order coffee, 34% order donuts, and 25% order both coffee and donuts. Let C represent the event a customer orders coffee, and D represent the event a customer orders donuts. In each part of this question, express each probability only in terms of the events C and D , and justify any computation by explicitly stating the formula you are using. Do not define additional events.

- Using proper notation, write each of the three probabilities above in terms of the events C and D .
- Are C and D independent events? Explain using only the three probabilities you stated in part (a).
- What is the probability that a customer will order a coffee but not donuts?
- What is the probability a customer will order at least one of these two menu items?
- If a customer orders a coffee, what is the probability they will order donuts?

QUESTION 3, [9.5 points] Sweet Holes Donut Shop wishes to investigate the age demographic of their customers. A random sample of 20 customer ages produced the following stem-and-leaf plot. Leaf Unit = 1.0.

1 789
2 2356689
3 23677
4 579
5 8

You are also given the following summary statistics: median = 30.5, $Q_3 = 43$, sample mean = 34.

- Identify the population, variable, and (experimental) unit for this scenario.
- Find the first quartile, Q_1 , for this data set.
- Are there any outliers in this data set? Explain.
- Sketch the box plot for this data set. Label all relevant values.
- The sample mean is larger than the sample median. Explain in one sentence how you could have predicted this would happen before knowing these two values.

QUESTION 4, [2.5 points] At Sweet Holes Donut Shop, the menu only allows a customer to order 0, 1, 2, 6, or 12 donuts. Let X represent the number of donuts a customer orders. The probability distribution of X is given in table below, but somebody spilled some jelly from a jelly donut on the value for $p(6)$.

x	0	1	2	6	12
$p(x)$	0.4	0.1	0.05		0.15

- What is the value of $p(6)$?
- How many donuts would you expect the next customer to order?
