ISACA Advanced in AI Security Management (AAISM) Exam Sample Questions (Q83-Q88):

NEW QUESTION # 83
Which of the following is the MOST critical key risk indicator (KRI) for an AI system?

- A. The response time of the model
- B. The accuracy rate of the model
- C. The rate of drift in the model
- D. The amount of data in the model

Answer: C

Explanation:
AAISM highlights that while accuracy and performance metrics are important, the rate of drift is the most critical KRI for AI systems. Model drift occurs when input data or environmental conditions shift, causing the system to degrade and produce unreliable outputs. This risk indicator directly reflects whether the AI continues to function as intended over time. Accuracy rates and response times are performance metrics, not primary risk signals. The amount of data in the model does not reliably indicate exposure to risk. Therefore, the greatest KRI for ongoing assurance and governance is the rate of drift.

NEW QUESTION # 84
Which of the following strategies is the MOST effective way to protect against AI data poisoning?

- A. Using robust data validation techniques and anomaly detection
- B. Ensuring the model is trained on diverse data sources
- C. Incorporating more features and data into model training
- D. Increasing model complexity to better handle data variations

Answer: A

Explanation:
AAISM directs organizations to prevent training-time attacks by hard-gating data ingestion with provenance checks, schema and label validation, sanitization, and anomaly/outlier detection prior to model training. These controls most directly block poisoned records from entering the pipeline and are prioritized over architectural complexity or sheer data volume. Diversity of sources can improve representativeness but does not reliably stop adversarial contamination.

NEW QUESTION # 85
Which attack type is MOST likely to cause model drift?

- A. Perfect knowledge
- B. Data poisoning
- C. Membership inference
- D. Model stealing

Answer: B

Explanation:

AAISM defines data poisoning as directly capable of causing model drift because corrupted training data shifts the statistical distribution, leading to degraded or unsafe performance.

Model stealing (A) extracts model behavior but does not cause drift. Perfect knowledge (B) is an attacker capability, not an attack causing drift. Membership inference (D) attacks privacy, not performance.

NEW QUESTION # 86

Which of the following key risk indicators (KRIs) is MOST relevant when evaluating the effectiveness of an organization's AI risk management program?

- A. Percentage of critical business systems with AI components
- B. Number of AI models deployed into production
- C. Number of AI-related training requests submitted
- D. Percentage of AI projects in compliance

Answer: D

Explanation:

AAISM identifies percentage of AI projects in compliance as the most relevant KRI for evaluating AI risk management effectiveness. This metric directly reflects adherence to governance, regulatory, and security requirements. The number of models deployed (A) or systems with AI components (B) indicate scale, not risk management quality. Training requests (D) show awareness levels but do not measure effectiveness of risk management. Compliance percentage provides a direct, measurable indication of how well risks are being governed and mitigated.

NEW QUESTION # 87

In a new supply chain management system, AI models used by participating parties are interactively connected to generate advice in support of management decision making. Which of the following is the GREATEST challenge related to this architecture?

- A. Explaining the overall benefit of the system to stakeholders
- B. Establishing clear lines of responsibility for AI model outputs
- C. Determining the aggregate risk of the system
- D. Identifying hallucinations returned by AI models

Answer: B

Explanation:

The AAISM governance framework notes that in multi-party AI ecosystems, the greatest challenge is ensuring clear accountability for AI outputs. When models from different parties interact, responsibility for errors, bias, or harmful recommendations can be unclear, leading to disputes and compliance gaps. While aggregate risk assessment and error identification are significant, they are secondary to the fundamental governance requirement of establishing transparent lines of responsibility. Without defined accountability, no stakeholder can reliably manage or mitigate risks. Therefore, the greatest challenge in such a distributed architecture is responsibility for AI outputs.
