BCS Foundation Certificate in Business Analysis V4.0 Sample Questions

(Q32-Q37):

NEW QUESTION # 32

What is the PRIMARY purpose of a benefits plan?

- A. It is published to shareholders to show that their investment made will result in tangible benefits for the organisation.
- B. It provides a firm basis for tracking the benefits of making changes to requirements.
- C. It provides a firm basis for tracking the business benefits and managing their realisation.
- D. It quantifies intangible benefits that could not be quantified when the business case was presented.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A benefits plan outlines how the anticipated benefits of a project or change initiative will be achieved, tracked, and managed. Its primary purpose is to ensure that benefits are realized as planned.

Key Considerations:

Tracking Changes to Requirements: A benefits plan focuses on benefits realization, not changes to requirements.

Quantifying Intangible Benefits: While intangible benefits may be included, the primary focus is on managing all benefits, tangible and intangible.

Tracking and Managing Benefits Realisation: The benefits plan provides a structured approach to monitor progress and ensure benefits are delivered.

Publishing to Shareholders: While stakeholders may review the plan, its primary purpose is internal management, not external communication.

Evaluation of Each Option:

A . It provides a firm basis for tracking the benefits of making changes to requirements:

The benefits plan focuses on overall benefits realization, not specifically on changes to requirements.

Conclusion: This is not correct .

B . It quantifies intangible benefits that could not be quantified when the business case was presented:

While intangible benefits may be included, this is not the primary purpose of the plan.

Conclusion: This is not correct .

C . It provides a firm basis for tracking the business benefits and managing their realisation:

This accurately describes the primary purpose of a benefits plan.

Conclusion: This is correct .

D . It is published to shareholders to show that their investment made will result in tangible benefits for the organisation:

The benefits plan is primarily for internal use, not external reporting.

Conclusion: This is not correct .

Final Recommendation:

The primary purpose of a benefits plan is:

C . It provides a firm basis for tracking the business benefits and managing their realisation.
