ACFE Certified Fraud Examiner - Fraud Prevention and Deterrence Exam Sample Questions (Q72-Q77):

NEW QUESTION # 72

(Andrea is leading the fraud risk assessment process for her organization. Which of the following considerations about the fraud risk assessment process is MOST ACCURATE and should be incorporated into Andrea's plans?)

- A. If the individuals conducting the fraud risk assessment believe that fraud could not happen at the organization, then the assessment process should reflect that belief.
- B. To ensure the independence of the team members, a consultant or another external party must conduct the fraud risk assessment.
- C. The fraud risk assessment is most effective when management's influence on the process is limited.
- D. Conducting an effective fraud risk assessment requires thinking like a fraudster.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Fraud Risk Assessment chapter explains that one of the most important concepts in conducting an effective fraud risk assessment is learning to think like a fraudster. The manual states that team members should set aside assumptions that fraud could not occur and instead consider how misconduct might actually be committed and concealed within the organization. This perspective helps identify realistic fraud schemes, opportunities, methods of concealment, and potential override risks. The manual does not say that management's influence should be minimized in all respects, nor does it require that an outside consultant must always conduct the assessment. Rather, it stresses objectivity, proper team selection, and a willingness to consider fraud risks honestly. Therefore, the most accurate choice is that conducting an effective fraud risk assessment requires thinking like a fraudster.

NEW QUESTION # 73

According to Silk and Vogel's research, business leaders rationalize legal violations by asserting that compliance with government regulations is too costly and cuts too heavily into company profits.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: B

Explanation:

Research Findings by Silk and Vogel:

* Their research highlights that business leaders often justify non-compliance with regulations by arguing that adhering to such rules significantly increases operational costs and reduces profitability.

Rationalization in Legal Violations:

* This rationalization is consistent with the fraud triangle concept, where rationalization serves as a justification for unethical or illegal actions.

Why A is Correct:

* This accurately represents a common justification for regulatory non-compliance as documented in fraud and compliance research.

NEW QUESTION # 74

Eliece, a Certified Fraud Examiner (CFE), and Jewel are employees at Silver Inc. Jewel informs Eliece that she has knowledge of a potential financial statement fraud but does not feel comfortable sharing this information unless Eliece can promise that she will keep it confidential. How should Eliece respond?

- A. Eliece should immediately contact management at Silver Inc. to provide information about her conversation with Jewel and her request for confidentiality.
- B. Eliece should encourage Jewel to report the information to law enforcement because she cannot agree to Jewel's request.
- C. Eliece should promise Jewel that she will keep the information confidential even though she knows that she will likely be unable to keep that promise.
- D. Eliece should tell Jewel that she will try to keep the information as confidential as possible but she might have an ethical obligation to inform their employer.

Answer: D

Explanation:

CFEs must act ethically and responsibly when handling sensitive information. Eliece should inform Jewel that she will try to maintain confidentiality but must adhere to professional and ethical obligations, which may require disclosing the information to appropriate parties such as her employer or relevant authorities. This balanced response encourages transparency while maintaining ethical standards.

NEW QUESTION # 75

Luis, the internal audit manager for Oak Corporation, is working to formally incorporate the company's fraud risk assessment into its audit process. Which of the following is NOT a way that Oak's audit team should use the fraud risk assessment process and results as part of their audits?

- A. To inform the development of audit programs for areas that have been identified as having a high risk of fraud.
- B. To design audit tests to evaluate whether fraud risk controls are operating effectively.
- C. To confirm whether there is conclusive evidence that fraud is occurring within the company.
- D. To validate whether the organization is appropriately managing moderate-to-high fraud risks.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 76

Having specialized departments within a company often increases the overall risk of fraud by the organization.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: B

Explanation:

* Risks Associated with Specialized Departments:

* While specialization improves efficiency, it can create silos that hinder communication, coordination, and oversight, increasing fraud risk.

* Isolated departments may lack cross-functional checks and balances.

* Conclusion: Specialized departments often increase fraud risk if not managed with proper controls and oversight.
