NEW QUESTION # 256

Refer to the exhibit. An engineer creates a function that gathers information from the Cisco Webex RESTful API. To enable increased durability, the engineer needs to implement a retry mechanism that pauses the script and retries the request if specific response codes are received.

Which code snippet must be placed in the blank in the code to meet this requirement?

□

- A. 403,404,409,429
- B. 429,502,503,504
- C. 400,403,409,504
- D. 400,404,502,503

Answer: B

Explanation:

The retry mechanism should handle temporary failures and rate limiting errors. The following response codes indicate conditions where a retry is appropriate:

- 429 (Too Many Requests): The API has rate-limited the request, and the client should wait before retrying.
- 502 (Bad Gateway): A temporary issue with the API server, often due to network disruptions.
- 503 (Service Unavailable): The API service is temporarily unavailable, and a retry may succeed later.
- 504 (Gateway Timeout): The server took too long to respond, indicating a transient issue.

These response codes suggest temporary failures that might resolve upon retrying after a short delay.
