- C. Determining camera coverage and creating a bill of materials.
- D. Estimating bandwidth and creating a bill of materials.

NEW QUESTION # 309

When recording a night scene with IR, what is the consequence of using a day-and-night camera without an IR-corrected lens?

- A. The color fidelity will be poor
- B. The image will flicker
- C. The focus will shift
- D. The IR light will not be used

Answer: C

Explanation:

When recording a night scene with IR, using a day-and-night camera without an IR-corrected lens can cause the focus to shift. This happens because IR light and visible light have different wavelengths and refract differently through the lens. An IR-corrected lens is designed to handle both types of light without causing a focus shift, ensuring sharp images in both day and night conditions.

NEW QUESTION # 311

Which setting would best adjust a hard yellow tint as shown in the pictures below?

- A. White balance
- B. Image contrast
- C. Image brightness
- D. Color saturation

Answer: A

Explanation:

The setting that would best adjust a hard yellow tint in the images is the white balance. Adjusting the white balance corrects color casts by accounting for the color temperature of the light source, thereby producing more natural colors in the image. In the example images, modifying the white balance would neutralize the yellow tint and restore accurate colors. Axis cameras have white balance settings that can be adjusted manually or set to automatic for optimal color representation. Further details can be found in Axis Communications' camera setup and image optimization documentation.
