VMware Advanced VMware Cloud Foundation 9.0 Operation Sample Questions (Q253-Q258):

NEW QUESTION # 253
An application owner reports that "The application was slow yesterday around 2 PM". The administrator checks the logs but sees no "Errors" or "Failures".
How can VCF Operations for Logs help identify a performance issue that doesn't generate explicit error messages?

- A. By rebooting the server.
- B. By enabling "Debug" logging on the agent.
- C. It cannot; it only tracks text errors.
- D. By analyzing the "Content Field" (Value) of logs. For example, if the logs contain processing_time_ms=5000, the administrator can create a query where processing_time_ms > 2000 to find latent transactions.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 254

A Cloud Admin is troubleshooting a "Stale Data" issue. The "Last Collection" timestamp for a vCenter instance is current (Green), but users report that the metric values for VMs (e.g., CPU Usage) have been a flat line for the last 4 hours, despite known activity.
Diagnostics
Adapter Status: Data Receiving
Collection Status: Success
Integration Point Analysis
vCenter Performance Charts (Source): Shows dynamic, changing data.
VCF Ops Metric Graph: Shows "Static Value" (Flatline).
Logs
[INFO] Processing metric payload... 500 metrics dropped.
[WARN] Metric content validation failed.
What is the most likely architectural cause for "Success" status but "Flat/Stale" metric values?

- A. The VCF Operations "Blacklist" (Metric Exclusion) configuration in the active Policy is enabled for these specific metrics, so the pipeline drops them and potentially repeats the last known value or shows null.
- B. The vCenter Server Statistics Level is set to Level 1, which does not generate 5-minute data.
- C. The Cloud Proxy time is out of sync with the Analytics Cluster by more than 30 minutes, causing the data points to be discarded as "too old" or "future" upon ingestion.
- D. The Analytics Cluster disk is full, so it is accepting connection handshakes (Status Green) but discarding the write payloads.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 255

A customer has a 3-node VCF Operations cluster (1 Master, 1 Replica, 1 Data). They plan to expand the cluster by adding 3 more nodes to handle increased object growth.
Current State
Nodes: 3
HA: Enabled
Target State
Nodes: 6
HA: Enabled
What is the operational impact of adding these new "Data" nodes on the cluster's storage and compute capacity?

- A. The storage capacity increases, but the compute capacity for processing metrics remains fixed at the Master node's limit.
- B. The cluster's total compute and storage capacity increases linearly, and the existing data/compute workload is automatically rebalanced (sharded) across all 6 nodes.
- C. The new nodes act only as standby targets; they do not process data until a failure occurs.
- D. The cluster automatically requires a reboot of the Master node to recognize the new capacity.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 256

An operator creates a recurring job to "Downsize Oversized VMs" every Sunday at 3:00 AM. The application team is concerned that an automated downsize might reboot a critical service unexpectedly.
How can the operator configure the job to provide a safety gate while still automating the schedule?

- A. Use the "Simulate" mode, which only writes to a log file.
- B. It is not possible; Automation Central is "All or Nothing".
- C. Set the job priority to "Low".
- D. Enable the "Email Approval" option in the job configuration. This will generate an email with the recommended actions, and the job will only execute the changes for the specific VMs that the admin approves via the link.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 257
A Capacity Planner is analyzing a "Capacity Critical" alert for a cluster.
Metrics
CPU Demand: 30%
Memory Demand: 40%
Disk Space Demand: 35%
Disk I/O Latency: 25ms (Consistently high)
Why does the Capacity Engine NOT flag this cluster as "0 Days Remaining" based on the high Latency?

- A. The Latency metric is stuck in the cache.
- B. The cluster is licensed for "Standard" edition which excludes storage metrics.
- C. Latency is ignored because the administrator disabled the "Storage" management pack.
- D. By default, VCF Operations calculates capacity based on supply-constrained resources (CPU cycles, RAM GB, Disk GB). It typically treats Latency as a Performance/Health issue, not a Capacity (quantity) issue, unless a specific super-metric or policy is configured to treat IOPS limits as a hard capacity ceiling.

Answer: D
