VMware Cloud Foundation 5.2 Administrator Sample Questions (Q51-Q56):

NEW QUESTION # 51

What is the primary purpose of configuring Role-Based Access Control (RBAC) in vCenter?

- A. To manage user access and permissions within the vCenter environment.
- B. To ensure vCenter runs on multiple operating systems.
- C. To enable vCenter integration with external storage systems.
- D. To provide a method for vCenter to communicate with ESXi hosts.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Role-Based Access Control (RBAC) in vCenter is used to define and manage user roles and permissions. It allows administrators to control who can access specific resources and perform actions within the vCenter environment. RBAC ensures that users only have access to the areas and tasks they are authorized to interact with, enhancing security and management.

NEW QUESTION # 52

What is the primary purpose of configuring VM storage policies in a VMware vSphere environment?

- A. To manage network traffic between VMs.
- B. To automate the backup of virtual machines.
- C. To enforce specific storage requirements such as performance, availability, and redundancy.

- D. To configure CPU and memory reservations for VMs.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The primary purpose of configuring VM storage policies in a VMware vSphere environment is to enforce specific storage requirements such as performance, availability, and redundancy. These policies help ensure that virtual machines are placed on datastores that meet the desired service levels and characteristics.

NEW QUESTION # 53

An administrator needs to configure Network IO Control (NIOC) on a Virtual Distributed Switch (VDS) to prioritize storage traffic over other types of traffic.

Which two steps should be followed? (Choose two.)

- A. Migrate all VM traffic to a standard switch.
- B. Create a new port group specifically for storage traffic.
- C. Navigate to the VDS settings in the vSphere Client and enable NIOC.
- D. Assign shares and limits to the new port group to prioritize the storage traffic.
- E. Disable all other traffic types to ensure storage traffic gets full bandwidth.

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

Network IO Control (NIOC) must be enabled on the Virtual Distributed Switch (VDS) via the vSphere Client to begin configuring and managing bandwidth allocation and prioritization for different types of traffic.

After enabling NIOC, you can assign shares and limits to the specific port group (in this case, for storage traffic) to prioritize the traffic over other types of network traffic.

NEW QUESTION # 54

How do virtual machine (VM) storage policies in a VMware vSphere environment contribute to optimizing resource utilization, ensuring data availability, and meeting application-specific requirements?

- A. By streamlining the process of automating virtual machine backups
- B. By defining and enforcing storage requirements, such as performance, availability, and redundancy
- C. By regulating and optimizing storage traffic between virtual machines
- D. By guaranteeing storage IOPs for a particular virtual machine

Answer: B

Explanation:

VM storage policies let you specify requirements like performance tiers, redundancy levels, and availability SLA, and vSphere enforces these rules against underlying storage capability profiles to optimize resource usage and meet application needs.

NEW QUESTION # 55

An administrator recently incorrectly deployed a new isolated VI workload domain within an existing VMware Cloud Foundation (VCF) instance.

How can the administrator reconfigure the VI workload domain to share the SSO domain from the management workload domain?

- A. From the SDDC Manager console, migrate the VI workload domain to the management domain.
- B. From the management domain vCenter Server instance, use the rsautil command to add the VI workload domain to the management domain.
- C. A new VI workload domain must be created through SDDC Manager.
- D. From the VI workload domain vCenter Server instance, add the management domain SSO and remove the isolated SSO.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

According to VMware Cloud Foundation documentation, once a VI workload domain has been deployed as an isolated domain (with its own SSO), it cannot be reconfigured after deployment to join the management domain's SSO domain. The official guidance states that the only supported approach is to delete the incorrectly configured VI workload domain and create a new one through SDDC Manager, ensuring it is properly configured to share the SSO domain with the management domain during the deployment process. There is no supported process to convert or migrate an existing isolated SSO VI workload domain to a shared SSO configuration after deployment.
