Psychiatric Rehabilitation Association Certified Child and Family Resiliency Practitioner (CFRP) Sample Questions (Q33-Q38):

NEW QUESTION # 33

Transition-age youth are able to gain psychosocial protective factors as well as neurophysiological buffering through which of the following?

- A. Involvement in the child protective system
- B. Consistent relationships with caring individuals
- C. Caregiving for younger siblings
- D. Connection to a peer network

Answer: B

Explanation:

In the CFRP framework, transition-age youth services focus on fostering protective factors to support mental health and resilience. Consistent relationships with caring individuals, such as mentors or supportive adults, provide psychosocial protective factors (e.g., emotional support) and neurophysiological buffering (e.g., reducing stress responses). The CFRP study guide states, "Transition-age youth gain psychosocial protective factors and neurophysiological buffering through consistent relationships with caring individuals, which mitigate stress and enhance resilience." Caregiving for siblings (option B) may build responsibility but is less directly linked to neurophysiological benefits. Involvement in child protective services (option C) is often a risk factor, not a protective one. Peer networks (option D) are supportive but less impactful than adult relationships.

* CFRP Study Guide (Section on Transition-Age Youth Services): "Consistent relationships with caring individuals provide transition-age youth with psychosocial protective factors and neurophysiological buffering, reducing stress and promoting resilience."

NEW QUESTION # 34

To encourage a child's self-worth, a practitioner needs to

- A. identify the child's emotions.
- B. display sympathy.
- C. demonstrate empathy.
- D. reinforce the child's perception.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Encouraging a child's self-worth is a critical strategy for facilitating recovery in the CFRP framework.

Demonstrating empathy, which involves understanding and validating the child's feelings, fosters a sense of value and self-worth. The CFRP study guide notes, "To encourage a child's self-worth, practitioners must demonstrate empathy, showing genuine understanding of the child's experiences to build their sense of value." Identifying emotions (option A) is a step but less impactful than empathy. Reinforcing perception (option B) may not always be positive, depending on the child's self-view. Displaying sympathy (option D) involves pity and is less empowering than empathy.

* CFRP Study Guide (Section on Strategies for Facilitating Recovery): "Demonstrating empathy is essential for encouraging a child's self-worth, as it validates their experiences and promotes a sense of value and self-esteem." References:

NEW QUESTION # 35

At what age does a typical child progress from concrete to formal operational thinking?

- A. Age 13-14
- B. Age 15-16
- C. Age 11-12
- D. Age 9-10

Answer: C

Explanation:

Supporting health and wellness in the CFRP framework includes understanding developmental milestones, such as cognitive development stages outlined by Piaget. A typical child progresses from concrete operational thinking (focused on tangible, observable events) to formal operational thinking (involving abstract reasoning and hypothetical thinking) around age 11-12. The CFRP study guide notes, "According to Piaget's theory, the transition from concrete to formal operational thinking typically occurs around ages 11 to 12, enabling abstract and hypothetical reasoning." Ages 9-10 (option A) are generally within the concrete stage, while ages 13-14 (option C) and 15-16 (option D) are typically after the transition.

* CFRP Study Guide (Section on Supporting Health and Wellness): "The shift from concrete to formal operational thinking, as per Piaget, typically begins around ages 11-12, marking the onset of abstract reasoning capabilities." References:

NEW QUESTION # 36

To establish a trusting relationship based on a child's needs, the practitioner would utilize

- A. active listening.
- B. conflict resolution.
- C. strength discovery.
- D. strategy development.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Building a trusting relationship with a child is a cornerstone of interpersonal competencies in the CFRP framework. Active listening is the most effective technique for establishing trust, as it demonstrates empathy and validates the child's needs and experiences. The CFRP study guide states, "Active listening is essential for establishing a trusting relationship with a child, as it ensures the child feels heard and understood based on their unique needs." Strategy development (option A) and strength discovery (option B) are important but secondary to building trust. Conflict resolution (option D) is relevant in specific situations but not the primary method for trust-building.

* CFRP Study Guide (Section on Interpersonal Competencies): "To establish a trusting relationship based on a child's needs, practitioners must utilize active listening to validate the child's experiences and foster trust." References:

NEW QUESTION # 37

To demonstrate culturally respectful listening techniques, the practitioner:

- A. Positions his body directly in front of the speaker.
- B. Uses body language to encourage conversation.
- C. Crosses his arms while communicating to increase concentration.
- D. Maintains constant eye contact with the speaker.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Culturally respectful listening is a critical skill within the Interpersonal Competencies domain of the CFRP framework, emphasizing effective communication that respects cultural diversity and individual preferences.

According to the PRA CFRP Study Guide 2024-2025, culturally respectful listening involves using nonverbal cues that align with the speaker's cultural norms to foster trust and engagement. This includes appropriate body language, such as nodding or leaning slightly forward, to encourage conversation without imposing discomfort.

Option A (Uses body language to encourage conversation) is correct because it aligns with best practices for active listening in a culturally sensitive manner. The PRA study materials emphasize that practitioners should use open, inviting body language to signal attentiveness and respect, adapting to the cultural context of the child or family. For example, in some cultures, excessive eye contact or confrontational positioning may be perceived as disrespectful.

Option B (Maintains constant eye contact with the speaker) is incorrect because constant eye contact is not universally appropriate. The PRA Code of Ethics and CFRP training materials note that eye contact norms vary across cultures; in some, prolonged eye contact may be seen as aggressive or intrusive. Practitioners must adjust based on cultural cues.

Option C (Positions his body directly in front of the speaker) is incorrect because directly facing the speaker may feel confrontational or invasive in certain cultural contexts. The PRA study guide advises maintaining a comfortable, non-threatening posture, such as sitting at an angle, to promote openness.

Option D (Crosses his arms while communicating to increase concentration) is incorrect because crossing arms is widely recognized as a closed or defensive posture, which can hinder communication. The PRA training on interpersonal skills stresses maintaining an open posture to convey receptiveness.
