- B. Hardcoding API keys in the pipeline scripts
- C. Disabling TLS for API endpoints to simplify integration
- D. Incorporating API token rotation and secure secret management practices

Answer: D

Explanation:

A key consideration when integrating CDE service API calls for deploying Spark jobs in a CI/CD pipeline, specifically regarding security, involves incorporating API token rotation and secure secret management practices. This ensures that authentication credentials used in API calls are securely managed and rotated regularly to protect access to the CDE environment. Hardcoding API keys, using generic Docker images to avoid API customization, and disabling TLS for API endpoints would all undermine security best practices and potentially expose the environment to unauthorized access or other security risks.
