Docker Certified Associate (DCA) certification is recognized as one of the most valuable and sought-after certifications in the IT industry. The DCA Exam is an industry-standard certification that validates the skills and knowledge of professionals who work with Docker. Docker Certified Associate (DCA) Exam certification is designed to provide a comprehensive understanding of Docker and its associated technologies. It covers topics like Docker installation and configuration, Docker images, Docker networking, Docker volumes, and Docker security.

Docker Certified Associate (DCA) Exam Sample Questions (Q74-Q79):

NEW QUESTION # 74

Will this Linux kernel facility limit a Docker container's access to host resources, such as CPU or memory?

Solution: cgroups

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: B

Explanation:

Docker uses cgroups, a Linux kernel feature, to limit the resources a container can use. This includes CPU and memory resources¹². For instance, Docker can limit a container's CPU usage to the equivalent of a single CPU core on the Docker host system². Similarly, Docker can limit a container's memory usage¹. However, to use these features, the Docker host must have cgroup memory and swap accounting enabled¹. Therefore, cgroups can indeed limit a Docker container's access to host resources such as CPU and memory¹².

NEW QUESTION # 75

Is this an advantage of multi-stage builds?

Solution: faster image builds by allowing parallel execution of Docker builds

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

= Simultaneously creating and tagging multiple images is not an advantage of multi-stage builds. Multi-stage builds are a feature that allows you to use multiple FROM statements in your Dockerfile, each starting a new stage of the build¹. You can selectively copy artifacts from one stage to another, leaving behind everything you don't want in the final image. This helps you to optimize the size and security of your images, as well as to simplify your build process¹². However, multi-stage builds do not create or tag multiple images at once. Each Dockerfile produces one final image, which is the result of the last stage in the Dockerfile¹. If you want to create and tag multiple images from a single Dockerfile, you need to use the --target option with the docker build command, and specify the name of the stage you want to build and tag³. NEW QUESTION # 76

Is this the purpose of Docker Content Trust?

Solution: Verify and encrypt Docker registry TLS.

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:

Docker Content Trust (DCT) is a feature that allows users to verify the integrity and publisher of container images they pull or deploy from a registry server, signed on a Notary server¹². DCT does not verify or encrypt the Docker registry TLS, which is a separate mechanism for securing the communication between the Docker client and the registry server. The purpose of DCT is to ensure that the images are not tampered with or maliciously modified by anyone other than the original publisher³. References:

NEW QUESTION # 77

Which of the following constitutes a production-ready devicemapper configuration for the Docker engine?

- A. Nothing, devicemapper comes ready for production usage out of the box
- B. Utilize the '--storage-opt dm.directlvm_device' Docker daemon option, specifying a block device
- C. Format a partition with xfs and mount it at '/var/lib/docker'
- D. Create a volume group in devicemapper and utilize the '--dm.thinpooldev' Docker daemon option, specifying the volume group

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 78

Will this command display a list of volumes for a specific container?

Solution: docker volume logs nginx --containers'

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

This command will not display a list of volumes for a specific container, because it has several syntax errors and invalid options.

According to the official documentation, there is no such command as docker volume logs or such option as --containers.
