Oracle Cloud Infrastructure 2025 DevOps Professional Sample Questions (Q31-Q36):

NEW QUESTION # 31

How can system administrators ensure that only signed images from Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Registry are deployed to a Container Engine for Kubernetes cluster?

- A. By configuring an image verification policy for the cluster
- B. By disabling access to the Container Engine for Kubernetes cluster
- C. By manually inspecting each image before deployment
- D. By encrypting the images using a custom encryption algorithm

Answer: A

Explanation:

Image verification policies are used to ensure that only trusted and signed images are deployed to an Oracle Kubernetes Engine (OKE) cluster. By configuring such policies, administrators can enforce that images must be signed and come from trusted sources, such as the Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Registry.

NEW QUESTION # 32

As a developer working on a software project to be deployed on OKE, you have created a Helm chart for your application. You want to deploy the chart using OCI DevOps service.

Which statement is true about deploying a Helm Chart using OCI DevOps service?

- A. The Helm charts must be located in the OCI Container Registry repository for deployment.
- B. Oracle Cloud Infrastructure (OCI) DevOps service supports deployment of Helm charts to Container Instances.
- C. A single chart can be installed only once into the same cluster, and create single release.
- D. The values.yaml file is a generic file located in the OCI Container Registry. You must create a reference to this file.

Answer: A

Explanation:

OCI DevOps service can be used to deploy Helm charts for Kubernetes-based applications running on Oracle Kubernetes Engine (OKE). For deploying the Helm chart through the OCI DevOps service, the Helm chart must be stored in the OCI Container Registry. This allows the OCI DevOps service to easily access the Helm chart during the deployment process.

NEW QUESTION # 33

A software development team is working on a prototype using Node.js and MongoDB as their programming language and database, respectively. They need to develop and test isolated web applications or RESTful APIs. They are looking for a simple, quick, and secure way to run containers without managing any servers.

Which OCI service is best suited for this use case?

- A. Compute Instances
- B. OCI Functions
- C. OCI DevOps Project
- D. Container Instances

Answer: D

Explanation:

OCI Container Instances provide a serverless way to run containers in Oracle Cloud Infrastructure (OCI). They allow you to run containers without having to manage any underlying servers or clusters. This is ideal for development teams that need a simple, quick, and secure way to develop and test isolated web applications or RESTful APIs.

NEW QUESTION # 34

As a DevOps engineer working on containerizing a microservices-based application to be hosted on OCI Cloud platforms, which step can help ensure that the container images have not been modified after being pushed to Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Registry (OCIR)?

- A. Scanning the image upon ingestion and comparing the image size for changes
- B. Signing the image using the Container Registry CLI and creating an image signature that associates the image with the master encryption key and key version in the Vault service
- C. Deploying a manifest to the Kubernetes cluster that references the container image and its unique hash
- D. Enabling scanning of container images stored in OCI Registry

Answer: B

Explanation:

To ensure that container images have not been modified after being pushed to the Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Registry (OCIR), you should sign the image. This involves using the Container Registry CLI to create a digital signature for the image, which associates the image with a master encryption key and key version stored in the OCI Vault service. This signature can then be verified at the time of deployment, ensuring that the image has not been tampered with since it was signed.

NEW QUESTION # 35

Observability helps understand system behavior, but it has limitations.

Which of the following tasks cannot be accomplished solely through observability?

- A. Automating software deployments
- B. Identifying infrastructure bottlenecks
- C. Optimizing resource utilization
- D. Identifying resource consumption

Answer: A

Explanation:

Observability refers to the ability to understand a system's internal state by observing its outputs. It involves metrics, logs, and tracing to provide insights into the system's behavior, which helps in monitoring and identifying issues.
