NEW QUESTION # 119

What is the difference between a restricted and confidential document?

- A. Restricted - to be shared among named individuals
Confidential - to be shared across the organization only
- B. Restricted - to be shared among named individuals
Confidential - to be shared among an authorized group
- C. Restricted - to be shared among an authorized group
Confidential - to be shared among named individuals
- D. Restricted - to be shared among named individuals
Confidential - to be shared with friends and family

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The difference between a restricted and confidential document is that a restricted document is to be shared among named individuals, while a confidential document is to be shared among an authorized group.

Restricted and confidential are examples of information classification levels that indicate the sensitivity and value of information and the degree of protection required for it. Restricted documents contain information that could cause serious damage or harm to the organization or its stakeholders if disclosed to unauthorized persons. Therefore, they should only be accessed by specific individuals who have a legitimate need to know and are authorized by the information owner. Confidential documents contain information that could cause damage or harm to the organization or its stakeholders if disclosed to unauthorized persons. Therefore, they should only be accessed by a defined group of people who have a legitimate need to know and are authorized by the information owner.

ISO/IEC 27001:2022 requires the organization to classify information in terms of legal requirements, value, criticality and sensitivity to unauthorized disclosure or modification (see clause A.8.2.1). References: CQI & IRCA Certified ISO/IEC 27001:2022 Lead Auditor Training Course, ISO/IEC

What is a reason for the classification of information?

- A. To structure the information according to its sensitivity
- B. To provide clear identification tags
- C. Creating a manual describing the BYOD policy

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

The reason for the classification of information is to structure the information according to its sensitivity.

Information classification is a process of assigning categories or labels to information based on its value, sensitivity, criticality and legal requirements. Information classification helps to determine the appropriate level of security controls and handling procedures for different types of information. Information classification also facilitates the communication of information security requirements and expectations among internal and external parties. ISO/IEC 27001:2022 requires the organization to classify information in terms of legal requirements, value, criticality and sensitivity to unauthorized disclosure or modification (see clause A.8.2.1).
