NEW QUESTION # 62

Which of the following pre-defined ABAP data types is a complete data type?

- A. n
- B. d
- C. c
- D. p

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation from Exact Extract:

* p (packed number) is a complete type, as it includes decimal places and precision definition.

* d (date), c (character), n (numeric text) are incomplete types; they require length specification.

Study Guide Reference: ABAP Keyword Documentation - Predefined ABAP Types.

NEW QUESTION # 63

What RESTful Application Programming feature is used to ensure the uniqueness of a semantic key?

- A. Determination
- B. Action
- C. None of the above
- D. Validation

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

In the ABAP RESTful Application Programming Model (RAP), validations are used to ensure that business rules and constraints are fulfilled, including the uniqueness of semantic keys.

A semantic key represents a natural identifier (e.g., employee number, product ID) and not a technical surrogate key. Validations can be:

* Field-level validations - used to validate input for single fields.

* Entity-level validations - used to validate logical conditions like uniqueness of a key combination.

The uniqueness check is typically enforced using a custom validation implementation in the behavior pool.

* Action (Option A) is used for operations triggered by the user or system but not for enforcing uniqueness.

* Determination (Option C) is used for automatically computing or adjusting field values, not for enforcing uniqueness.

Reference: SAP Help 1, page 7 - RAP Runtime and behavior definition section explains how validations are responsible for enforcing semantic consistency and uniqueness constraints.
