Salesforce Certified Industries CPQ Developer Sample Questions (Q42-Q47):

NEW QUESTION # 42

Configuration/Validation Rules define relationships between two products.

- A. True
- B. False

Answer: B

Explanation:

Configuration/Validation Rules in Salesforce Industries CPQ do not strictly define relationships between two products, rather, they are used to ensure that the configurations within a quote or cart are valid. These rules are applied to validate individual product options or combinations, but do not establish direct relationships between separate products. Therefore, the statement is false.

NEW QUESTION # 43

A product manager wants to create a product bundle that can only be ordered between January 5th and January 31st.

How should the developer configure the product bundle to meet this requirement?

- A. Set the Fulfillment Start Date to January 5 and the End of Life Date to January 31
- B. Set the Fulfillment Start Date to January 4, Selling Start Date to January 5, and the End at life Date February 1
- C. Enable the Active property on January 5 and disable the Active property on January 31
- D. Set the Selling StartDate to January 5 and the Selling End Date to January 31

Answer: D

Explanation:

To limit the ordering of a product bundle to the specific dates between January 5th and January 31st, the following configuration is most appropriate: C. Set the Selling Start Date to January 5 and the Selling End Date to January 31: This configuration directly restricts the availability of the product for purchase to between these specific dates, aligning precisely with the product manager's requirements.

NEW QUESTION # 44

When using range attribute-based pricing, where do you specify the values for each range?

Note: This question displayed answer options in random order when taking this Test.

- A. Pricing plan step parameters
- B. Columns in the RangeAttributePricingMatrix
- C. JSONAttribute field
- D. Vlocity Picklists

Answer: B

Explanation:

When using range attribute-based pricing in Salesforce Industries CPQ, the values for each pricing range are specified in the columns of the RangeAttributePricingMatrix. This matrix structure allows for detailed definition of pricing ranges based on specific attributes of a product. Each column can define a range or a specific attribute value, and corresponding pricing adjustments or base prices are defined alongside these values. This setup facilitates complex pricing strategies that vary according to a product's attributes, such as quantity, size, or custom specifications.

NEW QUESTION # 45

What must you do before you can create a product attribute?

- A. Create the product
- B. Create the picklist
- C. Create the objecttype
- D. Create an attribute category

Answer: D

Explanation:

Before you can create a product attribute in Vlocity, it is necessary to create an attribute category first.

Attribute categories organize attributes into logical groups, making it easier to manage and apply them across various products. This categorization is crucial for maintaining structure and relevance in attribute management, especially when dealing with a large number of attributes across different products in Vlocity CPQ.

NEW QUESTION # 46

The ProductAttributesBatchProcessor job copies the filterable product attributes across the product catalog to a specialized cached sObject for use in Vlocity Cart.

- A. True
- B. False

Answer: B

Explanation:

The statement that the ProductAttributesBatchProcessor job copies the filterable product attributes across the product catalog to a specialized cached sObject for use in Vlocity Cart is false. The job typically associated with handling filterable product attributes for Vlocity Cart is different. The ProductAttributesBatchProcessor is more commonly linked to processing and updating bulk product attributes within the system but not specifically for caching purposes in relation to the cart functionality. It's essential to use the correct batch job names and their functions when configuring and maintaining Salesforce Industries CPQ setups to avoid misconfigurations and to ensure system efficiency.
