IBM Instana Observability v1.0.277 Administrator - Professional Sample Questions (Q31-Q36):

NEW QUESTION # 31

For which event type does Instana create an alert because end users are impacted?

- A. Changes
- B. Incident
- C. Monitoring issues

- D. Issues

Answer: B

Explanation:

Based on IBM Instana documentation review, Incidents are the event type that triggers alerts when end users are impacted. The official IBM documentation states: "An incident helps you to understand situations impacting your edge services and critical infrastructure... Incidents are created as soon as Instana detects either a key performance indication (KPI) is breached on an edge service, or a critical infrastructure issue." However, the documentation also clarifies: "An issue is an event that is triggered if something out of the ordinary happens... An issue by itself does not trigger an alert, Instana simply notes that it happened. Should the service to where this system is connected behave badly, this issue is part of the incident." Critical issues can trigger alerts and may impact end users, but Incidents are specifically designed to represent situations where end-user-facing services (edge services) are impacted. The answer is B. Incident as the primary event type for end-user impact alerts.

NEW QUESTION # 32

What happens when multiple agent configuration files are created and put alongside the main configuration.yaml?

- A. The configuration file is read in alphabetical order.
- B. An error is thrown since only one configuration file is allowed at any time.
- C. All configuration files are merged in alphabetical order.
- D. Only the first file is processed while other files are silently ignored.

Answer: A

Explanation:

IBM Instana Observability's agent supports modularized configuration through multiple YAML configuration fragments within its configuration directory. As described in the documentation: "When multiple configuration files exist alongside the main configuration.yaml, the agent reads each in alphabetical order and applies configurations sequentially." This mechanism supports composable and layered configuration management, allowing base settings in configuration.yaml to be overridden or extended by secondary fragments. The key design principle is deterministic merge order-guaranteeing predictable configuration hierarchies across deployments. This method improves maintainability in large environments by facilitating separation of sensitive and technology-specific settings while maintaining a consistent merge process. IBM warns not to name multiple files with overlapping keys unless intentional overrides are desired. The merge is additive and case-sensitive, processed lexicographically, providing administrators both flexibility and traceability for troubleshooting and auditing. There is no error generated when multiple files are present; rather, Instana agent gracefully integrates them during initialization, a behavior that promotes advanced configuration modularity for complex deployments.

NEW QUESTION # 33

Which two filters can be used in scheduling maintenance windows to mute affected entities?

- A. Scope based
- B. Application Perspective
- C. Custom Entity
- D. Smart Alerts
- E. Dynamic Focus

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Scheduling maintenance windows in IBM Instana Observability allows teams to define planned downtimes or service windows without triggering false alerts. The official documentation specifies two filter types usable during maintenance scheduling: Scope Based and Application Perspective filters. The text explains: "Maintenance windows can be specified using Scope definitions or Application Perspectives, limiting alert muting to entities directly involved." Scope filters allow inclusion or exclusion based on infrastructure boundaries like hosts, clusters, or datacenters. Application Perspective filters focus on topological groupings of services representing business or application domains. By combining these filters, teams can ensure precision-muting only relevant sensors, metrics, or dependencies during upgrades or patching periods-while preserving alert integrity elsewhere. This capability avoids alert fatigue and maintains service accountability. Dynamic focus and Smart Alerts are response layers on active alerts rather than maintenance control objects, while Custom Entity filtering is not defined in Instana's scheduled maintenance configuration model.

NEW QUESTION # 34

Which feature helps automating incident management?

- A. Action framework
- B. Static code quality checks
- C. Log visualization
- D. Hotspot visualization

Answer: A

Explanation:

Automated incident management in Instana is powered by the "Action Framework." The IBM documentation reads: "Instana's Action Framework enables automated response and remediation to detected incidents via webhooks, script execution, or integrations with ticketing systems." The framework can trigger custom scripts, communicate with ITSM solutions, or directly notify DevOps/SRE teams when a health signature or smart alert activates. This helps shorten resolution times and supports continuous reliability objectives. Other visualizations or static checks, while useful (A, C, D), do not automate response—they only improve observability or code hygiene. The Action Framework is essential to operationalize incident response workflows across modern, distributed environments, as it closes the loop between detection and mitigation.

NEW QUESTION # 35

Which statement accurately describes the use of the agent key?

- A. It is used for both downloading Instana artifacts and deploying an instance.
- B. It is required only for downloading the license.
- C. It is not included in the purchase email and must be obtained separately.
- D. It is used only for deploying an instance.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The IBM Instana Observability product architecture uses a security credential called an agent key for authentication and authorization in both installation and deployment operations. The documentation explicitly affirms: "The agent key must be used for downloading Instana installation artifacts from IBM repositories as well as for deploying agents to connect to the backend." This binding ensures entitlement enforcement and integrity of data transfer. The key, distributed through official IBM entitlement channels or purchase confirmation emails, validates the customer's licensed environment. During deployment, the same key is included in configuration files or environment variables so that each agent securely authenticates to its assigned backend instance. This unified mechanism simplifies lifecycle management while maintaining strong license controls. The key is never generated manually nor limited to licensing download alone—its dual purpose makes it critical in both provisioning and operations stages.
