dbt Labs dbt Analytics Engineering Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q129-Q134):

NEW QUESTION # 129

You add a new seed file. Here's a snippet of your dbt_project.yml:YAML

- A. The "+" is incorrect for nested elements in this context
- B. Specifying column_types directly under seeds is invalid in a dbt_project.yml.
- C. The syntax within the column_types section is incorrect
- D. You cannot enable a seed file using the enabled property.

Answer: B

Explanation:

column_types config applies to individual seeds, not within the general seeds section. The others might be errors in different scenarios but less likely in this case-

NEW QUESTION # 130

A CTE within a dbt model is incorrectly casting a string column to a numeric type.

- A. A snapshot is incorrectly merging new data with incompatible types into an existing table.
- B. A Jinja macro meant to filter out non-numeric strings has a logic flaw.
- C. A source table has inconsistent data, mixing true numeric values with strings.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

This error usually originates from mismatched data types at the database level. CTE logic or source data quality are frequent culprits.

NEW QUESTION # 131

You notice a pattern where warnings are generated for several models due to missing descriptions. How could you configure dbt_project.yml to fail these models instead when descriptions are absent?

- A. Set a project-level severity setting under the tests: section.
- B. Introduce a custom macro to validate model descriptions_
- C. Globally change the default warning behavior using the warn-if: configuration
- D. Add on-run-start and on-run-end hooks to perform custom checks

Answer: C

Explanation:

The warn-if: configuration lets you escalate specific warnings to errors at the project level.

NEW QUESTION # 132

(Multiple Select)

- A. Knowledge sharing platforms or internal wikis for documenting best practices.
- B. Data discovery platforms to catalog available data assets
- C. Automated code linters
- D. Centralized dbt packages for reusable code

Answer: A,B,C,D

Explanation:

Each of these promotes collaboration, discoverability, and standardization - essential when scaling dbt across teams.

NEW QUESTION # 133

You need to regularly run performance tests to benchmark a time-sensitive incremental model. These tests involve more complex setup than standard dbt tests. How could you efficiently integrate them into your workflow?

- A. Create a dbt operation (macro) to encapsulate the test logic and invoke it as needed.
- B. Define the performance tests as their own dbt project, triggered separately-
- C. Convert them into dbt seeds to easily execute them alongside model runs-
- D. Write the tests as generic tests and use dbt's built-in warning thresholds.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

A provides separation and specialized configuration if needed. C offers reusability and the ability to run from within a dbt workflow. B (seeds) isn't suitable for complex testing logic. D (generic tests) lack the power required for performance benchmarking.
