NCLEX National Council Licensure Examination(NCLEX-RN) Sample Questions (Q415-Q420):

NEW QUESTION # 415

A male client has heart failure. He has been instructed to gradually increase his activities. Which signs and symptoms of worsening heart failure should the nurse tell him to watch for that would indicate a need for him to lower his activity level?

- A. Weight gain, edema in his lower extremities, and shortness of breath
- B. Drowsiness and lethargy after his activities
- C. Thirst, weight loss, and polyuria
- D. Pain in his legs when he walks

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

(A) Pain in the legs could be indicative of doing too much too quickly, but not of worsening heart failure.

The client should be cautioned to increase his activities slowly. (B) Thirst, weight loss, and frequent urination are not indicative of heart failure. The client should report these symptoms to his physician. (C) Drowsiness and lethargy are not indicative of worsening heart failure. The client should report these symptoms to his physician. (D) All of these symptoms indicate a worsening cardiac condition possibly associated with too much activity. The client's activity level should be evaluated.

NEW QUESTION # 416

A term neonate has experienced no distress at birth and has an Apgar score of 9. Her mother has asked to breastfeed her following delivery. Immediately after birth, the neonate was most susceptible to heat loss. The most appropriate intervention to conserve heat loss and promote bonding is to:

- A. Place her on a heated pad
- B. Place her under the radiant warmer
- C. Place her to her mother's breast
- D. Dry her with blankets

Answer: C

Explanation:

Section: Questions Set E

Explanation:

(A) A radiant warmer maintains an optimal thermal environment by use of a thermal skin sensor taped to the infant. The warmer limits parental attachment, so, although appropriate, it is not an intervention that promotes infant attachment. (B) Warmed blankets prevent heat loss in the neonate by conduction. In addition, tactile stimuli promote crying and lung expansion. This intervention does not promote attachment, however. (C) Skin-to-skin contact is an effective way to conserve heat after delivery and promotes parental attachment following birth in the healthy term infant. The first period of reactivity lasts approximately 30 minutes following birth. A strong sucking reflex and an active, awake newborn characterize this period. (D) Surfaces of objects warmer than the infant promote overheating by conduction, and neonatal hyperthermia may result.

NEW QUESTION # 417

A client is diagnosed with diabetic ketoacidosis. The nurse should be prepared to administer which of the following IV solutions?

- A. 0.9 normal saline
- B. D5 in normal saline
- C. D5W
- D. D5 in lactated Ringer's

Answer: A

Explanation:

(A) D5 in normal saline would increase serum glucose. (B) D5W would increase serum glucose. (C) A concentration of 0.9 NS is used to correct extracellular fluid depletion. (D) D5 in Ringer's lactate would increase serum glucose.

NEW QUESTION # 418

A client is being discharged from the hospital tomorrow following a colon resection with a left colostomy. The nurse knows that the client understands the discharge teaching about care of her colostomy when she says:

- A. "I know that I am not supposed to irrigate my colostomy."
- B. "The skin around my stoma may become irritated from the enzymes in my stool."
- C. "My stoma should be red and slightly raised."
- D. "My stool will be soft like paste."

Answer: C

Explanation:

(A) A left colostomy indicates an ascending colon resection. This type of colostomy can be irrigated. (B) The stool from an ascending colon resection should be formed. (C) The healthy stoma should be red and slightly raised. If it begins to turn dark or blue, the client should see the physician immediately. (D) The stool in the ascending colon does not usually have many enzymes in it. Stool from an ileostomy has more enzymes and is more irritating to the skin.

NEW QUESTION # 419

A client has been taking lithium 300 mg po bid for the past two weeks. This morning her lithium level was 1 mEq/L. The nurse should:

- A. Administer the morning lithium dose as scheduled
- B. Notify the physician immediately
- C. Obtain an order for benztropine (Cogentin)
- D. Hold the morning lithium dose and continue to observe the client

Answer: A

Explanation:

(A) There is no need to phone the physician because the lithium level is within therapeutic range and because there are no indications of toxicity present. (B) There is no reason to withhold the lithium because the blood level is within therapeutic range. Also, it is necessary to give the medication as scheduled to maintain adequate blood levels. (C) The lab results indicate that the client's lithium level is within therapeutic range (0.2-1.4 mEq/L), so the medication should be given as ordered. (D) Benztropine is an antiparkinsonism drug frequently given to counteract extrapyramidal symptoms associated with the administration of antipsychotic drugs (not lithium).
