Her colleagues at another investment fund share details about a small-cap company that is now showing a long-term basing pattern on the price charts, and whose prospects for future growth and earnings are outstanding. She invests in the company on behalf of the fund, and over the course of the next three years, the performance of the company's stock contributes greatly to her investment fund beating its benchmark. Jones:

- A. Has not violated the CFA Institute Code and Standards because she conducted additional research based on the information and found supporting evidence of her trade action
- B. Has not violated the CFA Institute Code and Standards because the investment was in the common stock of a listed entity, which is allowed by the investment fund she manages
