NEW QUESTION # 214

What is the primary difference between the arrow diagramming method (ADM) and the precedence diagramming method (PDM)?

- A. ADM is manual CPM calculations, while PDM is computerized.
- B. ADM is limited to finish-to-start logic relationships, while PDM is not.
- C. ADM uses arrows, while PDM uses boxes.
- D. PDM is a bar chart with network logic, while ADM is a pure logic network.

Answer: B

Explanation:

* Arrow Diagramming Method (ADM):

Also known as Activity-on-Arrow (AoA).

Activities are represented as arrows, and only finish-to-start (FS) relationships are supported.

ADM has limitations in representing other relationships like start-to-start (SS), finish-to-finish (FF), or start-to-finish (SF).

* Precedence Diagramming Method (PDM):

Known as Activity-on-Node (AoN).

Activities are represented as nodes (boxes), allowing for flexibility in logic relationships, including FS, SS, FF, and SF.

* PSP Study Guide Reference:

The PSP Study Guide highlights that PDM has more advanced capabilities compared to ADM, particularly in defining diverse logical relationships.

* Conclusion: The correct answer is A, as ADM is restricted to finish-to-start logic, while PDM offers more flexibility.

NEW QUESTION # 215

At a minimum, periodic reporting must be done at what interval?

- A. As requested by the owner.
- B. As requested by the project manager.
- C. Monthly.
- D. As specified in the contract documents.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Periodic reporting intervals are governed by contractual requirements to ensure consistency, transparency, and compliance. While monthly reporting (Option A) is common, the exact frequency depends on contractual agreements. Requests by the project manager (Option B) or owner (Option C) are secondary to stipulated contractual obligations. The PSP Study Guide highlights the importance of adhering to contractually specified intervals for periodic reporting to align all stakeholders.
