NEW QUESTION # 334

Several months after a project has ended, a project team member is still charging time to the project and is unable to charge time to new projects. Which of the following did the project manager neglect to do?

- A. Have the closeout report approved.
- B. Collect the stakeholders' feedback.
- C. Release the project resources.
- D. Remove the team member's access.

Answer: C

Explanation:

If a team member is still able (or forced) to charge time to a project months after it ended, the most likely missed closure activity is releasing project resources. In CompTIA Project+ closing activities, resource release /offboarding is a key step: it ensures people are formally transitioned off the project, their assignments are ended in the resourcing/timekeeping system, and they become available to be allocated to new work. If the PM neglects this, the organization's resource management system may keep the person tied to the closed project code, preventing accurate time charging and creating both reporting and utilization problems.

"Removing access" (A) is a security/offboarding step and might be relevant for systems or repositories, but it doesn't directly control time code availability or project assignment in resource planning. "Collecting stakeholder feedback" (C) supports lessons learned and continuous improvement, not time charging. "Having the closeout report approved" (D) is important for formal closure, but the specific symptom-charging time incorrectly and being blocked from new projects-points most directly to failing to release resources in the organization's administrative systems.

So the PM neglected to complete the operational closure step of releasing the project resources, ensuring staffing and timekeeping are correctly transitioned to new work.

NEW QUESTION # 335

Which of the following should be considered first when determining the privacy management for project data?

- A. Maintaining awareness of industry best practices
- B. Understanding applicable privacy regulations
- C. Implementing security role-based controls
- D. Evaluating the current privacy protection program

Answer: B

Explanation:

Before starting a new project that involves personal data, the project manager should first understand the relevant privacy regulations that apply to the data subjects, the data controllers, and the data processors. These regulations may vary depending on the location, industry, and nature of the data. For example, GDPR applies to any project that processes the personal data of individuals in the European Union, regardless of where the project is based or executed. Understanding the applicable privacy regulations will help the project manager to identify the legal obligations, risks, and compliance requirements for the project data. NEW QUESTION # 336

Which of the following is the most important activity for the project manager during the closure of a project?

- A. Release resources.
- B. Obtain project sign-off.
- C. Document historical information.
- D. Capture lessons learned.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Obtaining project sign-off is crucial in the closure phase, as it signifies formal acceptance of the project deliverables by the stakeholders. According to CompTIA Project+, project sign-off is a key milestone in officially closing the project.

NEW QUESTION # 337

A project coordinator has started a new project and is reviewing the following characteristics provided by the customer:

- * Two developers
- * High uncertainty about existing systems
- * Risk of frequent requirement changes
- * Tight deadlines

Which of the following project methodologies would be best to use in this situation?

- A. Scrum
- B. PRINCE2
- C. XP
- D. SAFe

Answer: A

Explanation:

This answer is based on the best practice of choosing a project management methodology that suits the project characteristics and environment¹². Scrum is an agile framework that is designed to handle complex and uncertain projects with frequent changes and tight deadlines³⁴. Scrum involves a small, cross-functional team that works in short iterations called sprints, delivering incremental and potentially shippable products at the end of each sprint⁵. Scrum also allows for continuous feedback and improvement through daily stand-up meetings, sprint reviews, and retrospectives⁶. Scrum is suitable for this project because it can accommodate the high uncertainty, the risk of requirement changes, and the tight deadlines, while also enabling the two developers to collaborate effectively and deliver value to the customer. NEW QUESTION # 338

Defects associated with project deliverables have been reported. The project team needs to find the cause of the defects. Which of the following tools should the project team use to find the cause?

- A. Pareto chart
- B. Kanban board
- C. Ishikawa diagram
- D. Decision tree

Answer: C

Explanation:

An Ishikawa diagram is a tool that the project team should use to find the cause of the defects associated with project deliverables. An Ishikawa diagram, also known as a fishbone diagram or a cause-and-effect diagram, is a graphical tool that shows the possible causes of a problem or effect using a fishbone-like structure. An Ishikawa diagram can help to identify and analyze the root causes of defects or issues and find solutions to prevent or eliminate them.
